Secretary Wilbur Gags Witness in Oil Case

ADMIRAL WARNED TO KEEP SILENT ON NAVY SECRETS

Robison Admits Receiving Command To Confer With Navy Chief, But "Hadh't Done So."

EFFORT CHARGED TO HIDE EVIDENCE

Fall-Doheny Lawyers Throw Hearing Into Turmoil by Sudden Coup at Trial.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER, United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, December 3.—(AP)—The intention of Fall and Doheny to use the secret naval war data of the United States as a cornerstone of their defense in the oil conspiracy trial was upset today by Secretary of the Navy Wilbur.

He issued an order sealing the lips of the defense's star witness, J. K. Robison, retired rear admiral. Robison was forbidden to reveal any confidential military information which he received while in the navy.

The defense lawyers were so incensed by this that they called for a subpoena to compel Wilbur to come into court and justify his action.

Danger of War.

It had been the plan to draw from Admiral Robison a disclosure of confidential naval information showing that there was imminent danger of war in the Pacific and that the rush to build up the Hawaiian naval oil reserve through the Doheny contracts was the result of this scare.

Other testimony today indicated that pressure for taking naval reserve oil out of the ground and storing it in tanks came from Fall and the interior department and that Fall declined to consult the attorney general regarding the legality of the exchange plan to pay for tank construction with navy royalty oil.

Doheny's Arm Infected.

Doheny has developed an infection in his arm and night sessions have been abandoned indefinitely so as not to overtax him.

"This infection causes a temperature at times," Frank Hogan, Doheny's lawyer, said. "His physicians would send him to bed at once were it not for the trial which Mr. Doheny is anxious not to delay."

The navy order forbidding Admiral Robison to reveal navy secrets was the sensation of the trial thus far.

"That's a lot of stage play," declared one of the prosecution counsel to the United News after Doheny's lawyer, Hogan, had brought out the fact of Secretary Wilbur's gag order in court.

Congress Drafts Radio, Tax, Alien Property Issues

Broadcasting Control Bill To Be Adjusted by Senate and House Group for Presentation.

MEDICINAL LIQUOR QUESTION ALSO UP

Members Also Dust Off Muscle Shoals for Reappearance Before Two Committees.

Washington, December 3.—(AP)—Designing of new legislative agencies to drap the old issues of prohibition, radio, taxation and alien property, and a possible election contest, today occupied the attention of members of congress who have reopened their offices on Capitol hill.

Muscle Shoals also was taken from the shelf and dusted for a possible reappearance before the military committee in the house and the agriculture committee in the senate, while radio took up the attention of a number of members on both sides.

The national radio coordinating committee, headed by Walter A. Strong, of Chicago, chairman of the radio section of the American Newspaper Publishers' association, made public its plan for radio control.

Would Withhold Licenses.

This was presented to house and senate members selected to adjust differences between the White and Dill bills. The program of the coordinating committee proposed withholding of further broadcasting licenses after December 6 until permanent radio legislation is enacted. It also favors placing of radio control under jurisdiction of a federal commission and the commerce department.

The temporary withholding of licenses is approved by Representative White, republican, Maine, author of the bill which has passed the house. On the other hand Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, author of the bill presented by the senate, feels that all efforts should be directed now toward permanent legislation.

The Muscle Shoals subject was revived in heated debates in congress last winter, was touched upon by Representative Cranston, republican, Michigan, and Chairman Hudson, of the house alcoholic committee, both days. They endorsed the proposal of Assistant Secretary Andrews, of the treasury, for the manufacture of 3,000,000 gallons of liquor to replace the fast disappearing medicinal supply.

The house ways and means committee plans to return to consideration of alien property legislation by the first of next year. Chairman Green feels the tentative plan agreed upon should be adopted, while Representative Mills, republican, New York, a committee member, predicted unanimous house approval of a non-partisan bill.

Prohibition, one of the vehicles for many heated debates in congress last winter, was touched upon by Representative Cranston, republican, Michigan, and Chairman Hudson, of the house alcoholic committee, both days. They endorsed the proposal of Assistant Secretary Andrews, of the treasury, for the manufacture of 3,000,000 gallons of liquor to replace the fast disappearing medicinal supply.

GAMBLING 'POOLS' ACCUSED OF HAND IN VOTE CAMPAIGN

Lottery Operators Gave $15,000 to N. Y. Republican Fund, Federal Investigators Say.

Boston, December 3.—(AP)—Rival gambling "pools" with headquarters in and around the New York state capital supported opposing political parties, according to information federal investigators said they had in their possession today. The pools, it was charged, operated lotteries on baseball and clearing house statistics. The activities of the Hudson pool, said to be one of a group located in the Albany district and operating in New York and New England, are under investigation by the federal grand jury.

Federal agents said today that they had learned that the Hudson pool contributed $15,000 toward the last republican state campaign in New York. Persons associated with this group were complaining, they said, that rival lotteries that supported the democratic party had not been investigated.

It was indicated that a second investigation into the affairs of these other pools might result in which federal agents would be aided by persons associated with the operation of the Hudson pool.

The present federal grand jury ends its term on Monday and before that time, it was predicted in courthouse circles, 18 or 20 indictments may be returned. These, it was expected, would be secret.

To illustrate the magnitude of the lotteries a federal official said it had been ascertained that in four Massachusetts cities alone sales of Albany pool tickets aggregated $75,000 weekly.

For two days the corridors of the federal building have been filled with witnesses, some of whom were detectives and police officers, some of whom were railroad police and some of whom were informers.

Witnesses from Springfield and West Springfield, Mass.; Albany, Troy and Rensselaer, N. Y.; Pittsfield and North Adams, Mass., were among those summoned.

DOZIER MAY GET STATE BANK POST

Resignation of Superintendent and Assistant Paves Way for Governor To Name Choice.

Reports were current at the state capital Friday that Governor Clifford Walker will appoint James H. Dozier, present state tax commissioner, to succeed T. R. Bennett, who resigned his post Thursday as superintendent of the state banking department. These reports could not be confirmed. The resignation involving the appointment was created when J. E. Cagle, assistant superintendent of the department, tendered his resignation.

Resignation of Mr. Cagle developed a peculiar situation in the banking department. Under the law the assistant superintendent succeeds to the position of superintendent in event the superintendent resigns. He holds office until the governor names a new superintendent who is appointed subject to confirmation of the senate.

In the event Mr. Cagle had not resigned he would have served as superintendent until the state senate meets next summer. By resigning both places are thrown open and it is the general belief at the capital that the governor now has the authority to appoint a new superintendent.

It was announced that Mr. Cagle had his resignation prepared several weeks ago and submitted it Thursday to Superintendent Bennett. Mr. Bennett announced two months ago that he would resign because of the condition of his health.

Mr. Cagle's resignation and that of Mr. Bennett are effective January 1, 1927, and it is understood the governor will name a successor prior to that date. At Governor Walker's office it was stated he had no announcement to make but was giving consideration to the question of whether or not he has authority to name a new superintendent at this time.

WOMAN LECTURER BARRED AS 'RED' AT AGNES SCOTT

Mrs. Lucia Ames Meade Refused Permission To Address Student Body This Morning.

Attacked by leaders of the American Legion and by trustees as "a red and a bolshevik," Mrs. Lucia Ames Meade, lecturer, author and vice president of the National Council for Prevention of War, will not be allowed to deliver a scheduled address before the student body of Agnes Scott this morning.

This was officially announced Friday night by an official of the school, who said instructions had been issued by Dr. J. R. McCain, president, to cancel the engagement for Mrs. Meade to speak at the chapel.

Intense interest was manifested throughout Friday on the Agnes Scott campus as the result of the intensive fight launched to prevent Mrs. Meade from addressing the students of the well-known Presbyterian female college at Decatur.

It was reported that a group of students was highly resentful of the attitude taken by leaders of the opposition to Mrs. Meade and planned to hold an indignation meeting to protest against "suppression of free speech."

It also was reported that a well-known member of the Agnes Scott faculty had threatened to resign his position unless the cancellation of the address was rescinded. Authorities of the college denied the truth of both the reports.

Legionnaires Lead Attack.

The opposition to Mrs. Meade was led by Scott Candler, mayor of Decatur and a prominent American Legionnaire in addition to being a trustee of Agnes Scott, and Asa Warren Candler, newly-elected commander of Argonne post of Atlanta. It also was stated that J. Howell Green, of Decatur had protested against the address and that other prominent men had voiced their disapproval of Mrs. Meade's appearance in the chapel.

Opposition to the speaker is said to have originated with American Legion posts in northern and eastern cities. Mrs. Meade being a citizen of Massachusetts and having expressed her views on "International Peace"—her subject scheduled at Agnes Scott—freely there.

Scott Candler stated that the legion did not object to Mrs. Meade "personally," but was opposed to the "people she ran with" and certain of her radical views.

Women Voters Hear Address.

The League of Women Voters Friday afternoon heard an address by Mrs. Meade on the same topic, and Miss Eleanor Raoul, pioneer worker in the Georgia League of Women Voters and a past president of the Atlanta league, was in attendance and stated that Mrs. Meade expressed no radical views.

Her address was largely devoted to a discussion of promotion of intelligent cooperation between nations.

FERDINAND PLANS TO GREET MARIE

Great Reception Planned at Rumania's Capital When Royal Party Arrives at Station.

Bucharest, December 3.—(AP)—Queen Marie, nearing home from her overseas journey, now is on Rumanian soil. The train on which she is traveling from Paris to Bucharest crossed the Rumanian frontier early this evening, and, official announcement said the royal party will reach Bucharest at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning.

No announcement was made, however, as to whether King Ferdinand would be able to go to the station to meet the queen. He has expressed determination to do so unless his health or the doctors prevent him.

The people of Bucharest, always anxious to see their beloved queen, were getting ready tonight for an elaborate welcome. Precautions were being taken by the authorities to handle the crowds which are sure to gather to show their pleasure over the safe return of the queen and her two children, Princess Elena and Prince Nicolas.

FATHER CHARGES PLOT TO CONVICT YOUTH OF MURDER

Albert Olson Suggests Body of Girl Was 'Planted' To Direct Suspicion Against Lover.

Prairie Du Chien, Wis., December 3.—(AP)—A conviction that the body of Clara Olson was "planted for purposes of discovery on a hillside overlooking the home of her lover, Erdman Olson, and to direct suspicion toward him, was voiced today by Albert Olson, father of the missing 18-year-old college boy who is charged with the girl's murder.

Clara, 22-year-old farmer's daughter, an expectant mother when she disappeared from her father's home on September 9, was found dead yesterday by a searching party in a shallow grave within a quarter of a mile of the tobacco plantation where Erdman lived with his parents.

Many Suspects Held.

The search for young Olson, who disappeared from Gale college a day after her father had threatened his arrest if the girl was not produced, brought word to Crawford county officials today that suspects are being held at Danville, Ill., Des Moines, Iowa, Evansville, Wis., and Crawfordville, Ind. The sheriff, viewing a suspect at Dwight, Ill., reported that the youth held there was not Olson.

An inquest over the girl's body has been set for tomorrow afternoon. Failure of a pathologist to reach here caused a postponement today.

Erdman's father, a straightforward farmer of 40, came today to a renewed defense of his son and declared preposterous the theory that his boy had deposited the body on the hillside where it was found yesterday.

The boy knew, his parent said, that the wooded plot where the grave was discovered was constantly frequented by hunters and he knew that it was at a dance at this season of extensive wood-cutting. He could not have hoped, the father insisted, that the body would lie there undiscovered.

Better Concealment Place.

Moreover, said the elder Olson, the boy had slain the girl and desired to hide the body, could have concealed it in a swamp on the tobacco plantation, described by the father as "the most desolate in Wisconsin."

Completing the circumstantial chain which convinced Olson of his son's innocence, the father reviewed the son's presence on the night of September 9, where Clara disappeared at a dance at Seneca, a dozen miles from his home; his departure shortly before midnight and his arrival home at 1:15 a. m.

"He could never have gotten the girl, killed and buried here and driven home after he left the dance near midnight and still have reached home a few minutes after 1," said Olson.

"And, if he had, his clothes would have shown it. There was no sign of mud or disarray on his clothes or on the car."

Seek Male Companion.

A new factor was injected into the situation today with a report that Clara had been seen in Chicago.

CHARLES RINGLING, CIRCUS MAN, DIES

Sarasota, Fla., December 3.—(AP)—Charles Ringling, 62, famous showman and circus owner, capitalist and financier, died at his home here early tonight of a cerebral hemorrhage, the result of a severe cold, from the effects of which he had presumably entirely recovered.

Charles Ringling was one of the original seven brothers who in 1882 formed a musical organization at Baraboo, Wis., and started the tour which later resulted in their establishing a small tent and wagon show, the present Ringling Brothers-Barnum and Bailey circus being the outgrowth of this venture.

SHOT BY PLAYMATE IN 'BURGLAR' GAME BOY NEAR DEATH

Irwin Hagen, 13, Not Expected To Live After Accident Shot Early Friday Night.

Irwin O. Hagen, Jr., 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin O. Hagen, 536 North Boulevard, was accidentally shot and probably fatally wounded early Friday night by his playmate, Earl Culbreth, 12 years old, as they "hunted for a burglar" in the apartment of the Culbreth boy's parents.

Physicians at Grady hospital held out little hope for the recovery of the wounded lad.

According to police reports, the two boys were playing in the Culbreth apartment, which is located just across the hall from the Hagen apartment. They had been examining a 32-caliber rifle, when, it was reported, they "thought they heard a burglar." Earl took the gun down and they proceeded to the window together. In some manner the rifle discharged and a 32-caliber lead bullet tore into Irwin's abdomen.

The stricken boy fell to the floor, screaming, while the terrified Earl rushed into the hallway, spreading the alarm. Tenants of the apartment reached the wounded boy's side a few seconds after he "was shot and he was immediately carried to Grady hospital.

The Culbreth boy was prostrated with grief and confined to his bed. He was barely able to give a coherent story of the shooting, so greatly was he affected by the tragic ending of an afternoon of playing with his friend.

Grady physicians stated that little hope was held for Irwin's recovery, although he was placed on the operating table only a few minutes after being wounded.

WIDER LUCKIE PLAN IS GIVEN IMPETUS

Repaving and Widening Street To Make Great Traffic Artery Urged at Luncheon.

Impetus to a proposal to widen and repave Luckie street from Bartow street to North avenue in order to provide a traffic artery from the central business district of the city to North Side drive, was given Friday at a luncheon meeting at the Henry Grady hotel of leaders in the move.

Plans to secure joint backing of the city and Fulton county commissioners for the project, which it is estimated will cost $250,000, were laid. A mass meeting of property owners, city council and commissioners is slated for next Thursday night at the Luckie street school building, at 7:30 o'clock.

More than 8 per cent of property owners already have agreed to deed to the city enough land to lay sidewalks along the proposed new thoroughfare, which will be 70 feet wide when completed and will lead from Luckie street, out Hemphill avenue, thence through the proposed Peachtree Creek Memorial park and on to Roswell.

Benefits Pointed Out.

Several miles of county concrete surfaced roads will be accessible when the new project is completed and traffic conditions in the city proper will be vastly improved, champions of the proposal point out.

If Depredations Continue, Right Men Will Be Caught, Judge R. N. Hardeman Warns.

PREFERS OPEN BARS TO HOODED PARTIES

Four Toombs County Men, Accused of Killing Man in Own Home as Family Looks On, Freed.

Lyons, Ga., December 3.—(AP)—Four Toombs county farmers charged with murder of Willie Wilson here on July 6, were acquitted by a jury late today.

Evidence presented to the jury showed that the door to the Wilson home was broken down by a mob and that Wilson was shot while his wife and children looked on.

The four men who were tried and acquitted were Enoch H. New, Lucien J. Edenfield, John Bruskinn and T. C. Hayslip, all prominent farmers living in the southeastern part of the county. Wilson was a tenant on the farm of Hayslip.

Judge Scores Mob.

After the jury returned its verdict Judge R. N. Hardeman, of the Middle Georgia district, said:

"If hooded men continue to parade the streets at a midnight hour, marauding and prying upon the public, and taking human life, the right men will be caught some time and then it will be my pleasure to sentence these masked hoodlums to hanging or death in the electric chair."

Judge Hardeman referred to the bill of rights of the state of Georgia, enacted in 1877.

"The law does not provide for hooded men to sit in judgment in the dark to administer punishment which they have no power to give," he said.

"As much as I hate immorality, intemperance and whisky, I would rather see an open bar room in every corner of the streets of my home county than a hooded organization that undertakes to administer punishment without trial," declared the judge from the bench.

"Let him who is without sin cast the first stone," he quoted.

"You men know; you members of the Klan, you who invaded homes, who cover your faces, who work in darkness to prey upon defenseless women, you haven't the backbone or the blood in your veins to come out in the open and I have denounced you from the bench all over Georgia," he concluded.

Wilson, who was shot by the mob, died a week later in a hospital in Vidalia.

Stir Created.

Three witnesses for the defense created a stir today when they swore on the witness stand that they had seen four automobiles filled with masked men parading the streets on the night of the fatal shooting.

According to the state's outlined case, the men went to Wilson's home at night, breaking into his room. Wilson is said to have reached for his gun and, when one of the hooded men turned a flashlight on him, he was discovered with armed. It was then that some member of the raiders' party fired, the bullets taking effect

DECISION OF JURY EXPECTED TO END ALL PROSECUTION

While Defendants Stand Accused of Murder of Rector, Second Trial Is Not Likely.

MRS. HALL ISSUES STATEMENT ON CASE

Widow Is Emotionless as End of Strange Trial Is Reached; Jurors Out for Five Hours.

State To Not-Prosecute Other Hall Indictments

Trenton, N. J., December 3.—Speedy action to not-prosecute the remaining indictments against Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, her brothers, Henry and Willie Stevens, and her cousin, Henry Carpenter, was forecast Friday night in a statement by Stages Attorney General Edward I. Katzenbach.

"Now that the jury has brought in a verdict of acquittal for these three persons," said the attorney general, "I am frankly of the opinion that the final disposition of any remaining indictments against them and against Henry Carpenter cannot be too speedily accomplished."

Nolle prosequi would be the logical method of procedure, Katzenbach said. He said he had been in conference with Governor A. Harry Moore as to procedure.

BY FRANK GETTY, United News Staff Correspondent.

Somerset Courthouse, Somerville, N. J., December 3.—Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall and her brothers, Henry and "Willie" Stevens, have been found guilty of the murder of Mrs. Eleanor Mills, the finding of whose body with that of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall started one of the greatest unsolved murder mysteries of American history.

A jury of 12 citizens of Somerset county, after deliberating a few minutes less than five hours, returned their verdict shortly before 7 o'clock Friday night, and the defendants left the courtroom amidst a mild but enthusiastic demonstration on the part of their relatives. The strange trio, which sat during the month-long trial imperturbable to the terrible accusations made against them and the slurs of the bitter little prosecutor, who fought to the end in vain for their conviction, received the verdict that cleared their names with perfect equanimity.

Justice Charles Parker when he entered said he had attempted to conduct the trial, "which occasioned such great

He Drank 63 Cups of Coffee In A Day

Last week a man named Comstock up in Minnesota drank 63 cups of coffee in a day, and now a man named Roberts out in Texas says he's going to beat that record.

About every so often we read of some man setting a record on the quantity of some article of food that he can eat at one time. Yes, it is always a man.

The inference is that women are more dainty in their eating and do not gorge themselves on some article of food because they like it.

It is well, therefore, that it is the woman of the home who buys the foodstuffs and supervises its preparation for the home table. And she receives considerable assistance in her purchasing by being a regular reader of the grocery, market and produce advertisements that appear in The Constitution.

We suggest that before you make your purchases today you read the advertisements in today's Constitution. Everything on the market is advertised and prices are given, and those prices are the last for the day's business.

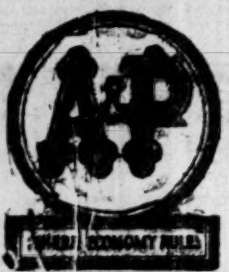

ADVERTISING IN THE CONSTITUTION PAYS THE ADVERTISER AND SAVES THE BUYER.

C. M. E. CONFERENCE GROWS IN INTEREST

Woodbury, Ga., December 3.—(Special.)—The colored Methodist annual conference, Bishop R. A. Carter, presiding, grows in interest daily. The pastors under J. A. Ragan, J. B. Walker, S. F. Dwyer and N. K. Kimble, presiding elders, finished reporting today. They raised upwards of 75 per cent of their general monies, which includes the salaries of pastors, presiding elders, bishops and current expenses. The conference raised $67,000. This was an increase over last year. Among those addressing the conference were Mayor Arthur Jones and the pastor of the Methodist church, south. The bishop stated he was acquainted with both sections of the country, north and south, and would not advise all of the "race to go north for many reasons." While it is your privilege to go where you desire, conditions are changing for the better and your opportunity to possess lands and homes mean very much more here than in any other section," he said. Those addressing the conference last night were: J. A. Martin, Sunday school editor, Nashville, Tenn.; J. H. Wiggins, G. L. Word, A. F. Bailey, Atlanta; A. W. Womack, Detroit, Mich., and Professor Tonsil, of Cordele.

The conference held an executive session and plans to raise a special budget of $10,000 for education and missions in the state for the coming year were discussed.

MERGER PLANNED OF POWER UNITS

Merger of four big power units in Georgia will be considered December 15, when stockholders of the Georgia Railway and Power company and its subsidiaries have been called to Atlanta for a special meeting. The four companies mentioned in the proposed merger which, if consummated, will mean a big undertaking in financing the new merger, are:

The Georgia Railway and Power company, the Georgia Railway and Electric company, Georgia Power company, Athens Railway and Electric company, East Georgia Power company and the Rome Railway and Light company.

Included in the proposal is a plan to cancel the 99-year lease under which the Georgia Railway and Power company assumed control of the Georgia Railway and Electric company several years ago, it was announced. Under the terms of the old lease stockholders were guaranteed a return of 8 per cent a year on common stock and 5 per cent a year on preferred stock.

Outstanding features in the proposed merger involve:

The issuance of $18,534,000 in "underlying divisional" bonds.

The issuance of $45,000,000 in new 5 per cent bonds.

The issuance of 285,445 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock, "without par value or voting rights."

The issuance of 450,000 shares of 6 per cent second preferred stock, "without par value or voting rights."

The issuance of 2,000,000 shares of common stock, without par value.

The new issue of $45,000,000 in bonds, it is explained, will be used to retire bonds at present outstanding on the properties of the constituent companies, etc.

The first preferred 6 per cent will be issued in exchange for the shares of the constituent companies not now held by the present Georgia Power company.

The 450,000 shares of second preferred 6 per cent, which eventually will enjoy the same rights as the first preferred, along with the 2,000,000 in common stocks, are to be exchanged for a like number of shares of the second preferred and common stock of the Georgia Power company heretofore issued or agreed to be issued.

Bingham was in a serious condition, because of loss of blood, and doctors stated that fingers were shot off and two others were hurt.

Bingham told doctors that he dropped the gun while returning from a trip and it was accidentally discharged.

ASTRONOMICAL BODY WILL BE ORGANIZED

A name for the new society and officers will be chosen at the meeting it was announced.

Following organization of the society, an hour will be devoted to observing the planets provided weather conditions permit.

For several years past a small number of Atlanta amateurs have been accustomed to meet together for study and observation of the stars, but at a recent meeting it was decided to organize a society.

TO SEND FORMER FRIEND OF WILSON TO SEE SUSPECT

Identification of the prisoner held in Lima, Ohio, believed to be Jack Wilson, who is wanted here for the slaying of William H. Cheek, Pearl-tree road grocer, will be made by an acquaintance of the alleged slayer: before he is returned to Atlanta to face trial.

This became known Friday when Solicitor General John A. Boykin detailed investigators to locate acquaintances from whom he will select one to accompany an officer to Lima to identify the prisoner if possible a return him here.

From authentic sources, Solicitor Boykin has been led to believe that the prisoner is the murderer of the grocer, and he is making every effort to establish the identity quickly and return the prisoner here for trial.

The suspect was arrested in St. Marys, Ohio, four days ago in connection with a bank robbery. Authorities of that city, however, were unable to link him with the case but are holding him at the request of Atlanta authorities. He was suffering from a wound in the leg when arrested and was taken to a hospital in Lima, Ohio, for treatment, where he is being held under guard.

Finger prints and photographs of the suspect have been added to Solicitor Boykin by Ohio authorities and are expected to reach him today.

$10,000,000 COUP MADE ON MARKET

New York, December 4.—(AP)—The New York Times says a stock market coup has been completed by Arthur W. Cutten, of Chicago, and a group of associates trading in the shares of Baldwin locomotive. The credit was with an amazing paper profits of upward of $10,000,000 within a single month and have completely taken the play away from New York traders.

Baldwin sold at a new high for the year today—162 1/2. The end of the movement is not yet in sight, the paper says.

Two market developments led Mr. Cutten to organize what has been termed a one-man pool in Baldwin. One of these was the fact that the wheat market was in the doldrums. The other was that the stock market itself had slipped into a trading area in which movements were colorless, but which might be revived by a bold speculative stroke.

INDUSTRY LEADS FARMING IN SOUTH, CITY BUILDER SAYS

Industry now holds the ratio of two to one to agriculture in the south, it is stated in an article in the December issue of The City Builder, by B. S. Barker, executive vice president of the chamber of commerce. Mr. Barker discusses the growth of industry in Georgia during 1926 and gives many interesting figures on the steady progress of industry throughout the south.

A review of the current issue of the magazine shows a diversity of articles of particular interest to Georgians. Articles are contributed by widely-known men and tend to show the general upward trend of business in the south. An attractive picture forms the cover.

Magnitude of the advertising given Atlanta during 1926 is indicated in a short editorial which says that a minimum of 43,250,363 persons were reached in all parts of the world. The editorial also comments on the immense good this advertising has done for Atlanta and the state at large.

An article on agriculture is contributed by Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture. Dr. Soule states that Georgia will produce in 1926, $4,000,000 worth of agricultural products.

Biographical sketches with pictures are given of the three new heads of Atlanta and Georgia, Governor-elect L. G. Hardman, Mayor-elect L. N. Ringsdale and Congressman-elect L. J. Steele. Among the other contributors to the magazine are: W. R. Crites, William Candler, Frederick T. Newell, R. E. L. Cone, Dudley Glass and E. S. Center, Jr.

GEORGIA OFFICIALS TO ATTEND MEET ON COTTON RATES

General revision of freight rates on cotton in all parts of the south will be discussed at a hearing to be conducted in New Orleans beginning December 17, with Thomas F. Woolloch, member of the interstate commerce commission, presiding. It was announced Friday by James A. Perry, chairman of the Georgia public service commission. Mr. Perry and E. M. Price, rate expert of the Georgia commission, will attend the session.

At the New Orleans meeting plans of procedure will be given and dates set for future hearings to be held in various parts of the south. This case is one of the most important rate cases ever held in the south according to Mr. Perry and will be attended by leading cotton growers, manufacturers and shippers, by representatives of railway and steamship companies, and by members of the public service commissions of southern states.

Mr. Perry said this is a part of a move to revise rates on agricultural products in all parts of the country.

Express Head Urges Care in Preparation Of Xmas Shipments

Care in preparing Christmas parcels for shipments was urged by R. K. Smith, general agent for the Atlanta division of the American Express company, in a warning Thursday to prospective shippers. Predicting a heavy holiday traffic over the express routes, Mr. Smith made the following suggestions:

"In preparing any shipments, consideration should be given to the nature of the goods, the distance they are to travel and the amount of handling they must necessarily receive. The nature of the gift and the weight will determine whether it can safely be transported with paper wrappings only," he said.

"Fragile articles, like glass and crockery, need the protection of a box or other outside container in addition to ample and suitable cushioning material. If several are forwarded in the same package, they should be separately wrapped and then perhaps tied together. 'Play' inside a package may cause damage to the contents. Good, strong paper and twine liberally used will help."

A passenger plane dropped into the English channel recently, but the women passengers just swam on across.

A review of the current issue of the magazine shows a diversity of articles of particular interest to Georgians. Articles are contributed by widely-known men and tend to show the general upward trend of business in the south. An attractive picture forms the cover.

Magnitude of the advertising given Atlanta during 1926 is indicated in a short editorial which says that a minimum of 43,250,363 persons were reached in all parts of the world. The editorial also comments on the immense good this advertising has done for Atlanta and the state at large.

An article on agriculture is contributed by Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State College of Agriculture. Dr. Soule states that Georgia will produce in 1926, $4,000,000 worth of agricultural products.

Biographical sketches with pictures are given of the three new heads of Atlanta and Georgia, Governor-elect L. G. Hardman, Mayor-elect L. N. Ringsdale and Congressman-elect L. J. Steele. Among the other contributors to the magazine are: W. R. Crites, William Candler, Frederick T. Newell, R. E. L. Cone, Dudley Glass and E. S. Center, Jr.

General revision of freight rates on cotton in all parts of the south will be discussed at a hearing to be conducted in New Orleans beginning December 17, with Thomas F. Woolloch, member of the interstate commerce commission, presiding. It was announced Friday by James A. Perry, chairman of the Georgia public service commission. Mr. Perry and E. M. Price, rate expert of the Georgia commission, will attend the session.

At the New Orleans meeting plans of procedure will be given and dates set for future hearings to be held in various parts of the south. This case is one of the most important rate cases ever held in the south according to Mr. Perry and will be attended by leading cotton growers, manufacturers and shippers, by representatives of railway and steamship companies, and by members of the public service commissions of southern states.

Mr. Perry said this is a part of a move to revise rates on agricultural products in all parts of the country.

Express Head Urges Care in Preparation Of Xmas Shipments

Care in preparing Christmas parcels for shipments was urged by R. K. Smith, general agent for the Atlanta division of the American Express company, in a warning Thursday to prospective shippers. Predicting a heavy holiday traffic over the express routes, Mr. Smith made the following suggestions:

"In preparing any shipments, consideration should be given to the nature of the goods, the distance they are to travel and the amount of handling they must necessarily receive. The nature of the gift and the weight will determine whether it can safely be transported with paper wrappings only," he said.

"Fragile articles, like glass and crockery, need the protection of a box or other outside container in addition to ample and suitable cushioning material. If several are forwarded in the same package, they should be separately wrapped and then perhaps tied together. 'Play' inside a package may cause damage to the contents. Good, strong paper and twine liberally used will help."

A passenger plane dropped into the English channel recently, but the women passengers just swam on across.

COVINGTON MAN KILLED BY TREE

Covington, Ga., December 3.—(Special)—Boyce Bohanan, 23, died at an Atlanta hospital this afternoon of injuries received earlier in the day while working at Henderson's sawmill, several miles from Covington. A tree fell across his back, pinning him and causing internal injuries. He was rushed to an Atlanta hospital. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Alec Bohanan, of Covington, and was in the employ of P. T. Shaw, who has a large lumber yard here. Funeral plans have not been announced.

MEDICINAL LIQUOR STIRS OPPOSITION

Washington, December 3.—The plan of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews for setting up a private corporation, supervised by the government, for manufacture of medicinal liquor is meeting obstacles that threaten it seriously.

One open indication of the situation came today when Andrews went before the national legislative conference, representing church and reform organizations here to consider dry enforcement, to explain his plan. He intended to take 15 or 20 minutes, but was behind closed doors answering questions for nearly two hours.

When he came out, he announced that the organization would take no position on the plan until the government had drafted by the treasury. There was great secrecy about the meeting, held at a local hotel, and reporters who waited in the corridors were threatened with being put out of the hotel by one of those in the meeting. Failure of the organization to take a position was interpreted as indicating considerable doubt about the plan in their ranks.

Though Andrews expressed confidence that the private corporation would pay, distillers apparently are hesitant about the plan as a business proposition, since no financing method has been set up yet, and Andrews conferred with distillers in New York recently. His estimate today of the cost under government operation also seems to indicate that this alternative is being seriously considered.

USE OF COTTON BAGS URGED BY GOVERNOR

Governor Clifford Walker Friday sent a letter to the state highway department asking that department to use cotton bags as containers for cement used in road construction throughout the state. This move was made by the governor to increase production of cotton products in line with a general movement to this effect waged throughout the south.

Following is the letter of the governor:

The Textile Manufacturing association has suggested the use of cotton bags for containers for cement and has further suggested that the highway department, in its specifications, shall require that cement bags shall be made of cotton bags. I am sure that your body will feel a deep interest in the movement and encourage of additional uses for cotton and cotton products and, therefore, I am taking the liberty to suggest that you take under careful consideration the latter suggestion.

Assuring you of my desire to cooperate with you in this effort.

CLIFFORD WALKER, Governor.

MRS. PSCHAFF GIVEN FOUR-YEAR SENTENCE

Mrs. J. T. Pschaff entered pleas of guilty to six indictments charging issuing of fictitious checks Friday morning before Judge E. D. Thomas in Fulton superior court and was sentenced to serve four years in the state penitentiary. Two additional one-year sentences also were given her, the terms, however, being suspended.

She is alleged to have issued a number of small checks to Atlanta department stores of amounts ranging between $10 and $18.

TIFTON MAN KILLED BY PASSENGER TRAIN

Tifton, Ga., December 3.—(AP)—Willie Connors, 60, was killed this afternoon when struck by a west-bound train. It is believed he was walking in front of the train without seeing it.

Most of us didn't even know there was a King Marie until he became ill and like any other husband tried for his wife to come home and take care of him.

RADIO-ING

The Air Waves.

BY WILL H. SMITH.

Were you ever swamped with radio? If you were you will know just how the Dial Twister felt last evening when he arrived home and found that Santa Claus, or maybe it was F. C. King, of the Scoville Mercantile company, distributors of the Stromberg-Carlson line of radio receiving apparatus, had literally dumped a complete outfit in the living room.

If you have never fooled around with radio you will never know the feeling we experienced when we gazed about in blank amazement at the multitude of special fixtures, contraptions, whatnots, etc., that confronted us. Imagine, if you can, a tiny, though cozy living room, literally piled high with radio apparatus.

The Dial Twister was knee high in radio, not daisies, if you know what we mean. We thought we knew something about radio but believe it or not, just as you please, we had one big night putting it all together and then learning all over just what radio can be if it wants to. We romped around the country just as we would in a high priced automobile. We haven't any idea how much this Stromberg-Carlson cost and we don't particularly care, but we do know this, whatever is east isn't half what it is actually worth.

Packard of Radio.

We have raved about tone quality, decanted at length about selectivity and written reams and reams about volume, and all that we have written before is but a brief glimpse of the pleasure we experienced last night twisting the dials on this Packard of the radio world.

It had an "A" unit with trickle charger, a "B" power pack, a loop, a relay switch, several "C" batteries and one of the most wonderful loud speakers we have ever heard. The last named hangs on the wall—that is, it hangs on the wall if one has wall enough. After removing a couple of pictures and rearranging all the furniture we finally got it set up and percolating.

Whang, the first station we tuned in was KVOO, at Bristow, Okla. It had all the power we needed, and more but we finally tamed her down to the size of our house and from then on things began to happen. It was power here, and power there with the Dial Twister right on the heels of the volume control.

Now for Distance.

I don't know yet what sort of a home friend King, at the Scoville Mercantile company, thought we lived in. We have visited his office many and many a time on the sixth floor of the Rhodes building and admired his array of Stromberg-Carlson receivers with never a thought of our ever being able to sit down at one in our own home.

His office, representing one of the oldest and most conservative telephone and telegraph manufacturing companies in the United States, impresses one with the dignity of its business. All the office furniture, rugs, draperies, etc., carry out this idea. In the midst of this setting stands the radio display. The entire picture reminds one of the St. Louis automobile displays one sees at New York, Detroit and Chicago. In other words, it is real radio, if you can understand my incoherence.

San Antonio, WDAF, at Kansas City, WIOD, at Miami, WHT, in the Wrigley building at Chicago, KTHS, at Hot Springs, Ark., and the Tiger-Flowers fight at Chicago, were a few of the things we appeared during the evening while we were mastering the set. By tomorrow evening we will have things done in good shape and then we will be able to give you a line on distance. Friend King tells me that he had KFI on at 11 o'clock last night. If he can do that, we ought to be able to get China to say nothing of L.O. at London.

Perhaps the climax of a wonderful evening came when the Stromberg-Carlson brought KFI, Los Angeles, rolling in with great volume on the loop, the antenna being snapped off for this transcontinental reception.

FELTON HOME BOUGHT BY MACON CITIZEN

Macon, Ga., December 3.—(P)—The home of the late Judge William H. Felton, said to be one of the finest of the old-time homes of the south, was purchased today by P. L. Hay for $75,000. The residence has 22 rooms, is finished in rosewood and black walnut, with high ceilings and heavy doors. The original cost was close to a quarter of a million.

Mr. Hay says that while he will use it as his home, he wanted to preserve the property in its original form.

Grakelow, of Philadelphia, grand exalted ruler of the Elks, will arrive in Atlanta this morning to supervise the induction of a large class of candidates which will take place tonight at the Elks' home, 54 East Ellis street. This is to be one of the outstanding affairs in the history of the local lodge, according to officials.

A committee composed of Turner Fitten, Atlanta, exalted ruler; W. P. Andrews, member of the grand forum, and B. C. Broyles, deputy grand exalted ruler for Georgia, will greet the ruler, who will arrive at 9:30 o'clock at Brookwood station.

This special visit to Atlanta for the purpose of supervising the initiation of the class of candidates, to be known as the "Grakelow class," is considered an exceptional compliment to the local lodge. Mr. Grakelow and his party will leave Atlanta for Nashville, Tenn., Sunday morning.

DRUG STORE SCENE OF BOLD HOLD-UP

"Put 'em up, brother, or your name's mud," an unmasked bandit commanded R. J. Marshall, manager, in the Home Drug store, 1305 Highland avenue, about 11 o'clock Friday night. The startled Mr. Marshall found himself gazing down the long barrel of a revolver in the hands of the speaker, and responded promptly. No sooner had the weapon been drawn than the man who had been standing near the front of the store gazing at a newspaper walked to where the cash register stood, and with a few deft movements relieved it of its burden of cash—a little more than $5.

This done, both men dashed to the front door and into the usual waiting automobile, which had been standing in front, its motor running quietly. Mr. Marshall told police that the two men entered together. One of them stopped near the front door at the news stand. The other proceeded nonchalantly toward the rear. Mr. Marshall came forward to serve him and was greeted with a command to raise his hands. He furnished Cash Officers J. E. Daniel and John Crankshaw with detailed descriptions of the two men, both of whom wore spectacles. The ones on the holder of the gun were colored.

Deputy Seizes Big Liquor Cache Single-Handed

Evidence that some progress is being made in the enforcement of the prohibition law was given Friday night when R. T. Tolbert, of Fulton county, seized, single-handed, more than 100 gallons of premeditated corn whiskey.

J. D. Bazemore, Fulton county jailer, declared that it was one of the largest hauls made in this city in some time. He said the contraband appeared to be of the highest quality, which would give it a market value of something more than $1,000.

S. D. Durham, colored, 33 years old, who was confined along with the whiskey, was found in the proverbial neatly-laid trap under the floor of his home, 30 Lester street. He claimed the liquor was and was promptly lodged in Fulton tower under a charge of violating the prohibition law.

Mr. Bazemore received a tip that the liquor was concealed somewhere about the Lester street address and reported the matter to Mr. Tolbert, who proceeded to conduct the raid without any assistance.

Many seizures have been reported here of late, and it is said that the price of whiskey is scheduled to mount steadily as the holiday season draws near.

BANK AT JACKSON CLOSES ITS DOORS

Jackson, Ga., December 3.—(P)—Because of poor collections and gradual withdrawal of deposits the Farmers and Merchants bank, of Jackson, closed its doors this morning. The closing was announced in a notice posted on the doors of the bank and signed by J. H. Carmichael, president.

The notice read as follows: "On account of poor collections and gradual withdrawal of deposits we are forced to close the bank, which I hope will be only temporarily. All of my personal property and real estate, including my home, will be used for the protection of the depositors of the bank."

Signed, J. H. Carmichael, president of the Farmers and Merchants bank, of Jackson.

The bank was started in 1902 by Mr. Carmichael, and up until 1916 was known as the First National bank, of Jackson, when it then merged with the Farmers bank, of Jackson, and took its present name. It was capitalized at $125,000.

Mystery of Choir Murders

HISTORY OF NOTED NEW JERSEY CASE

Left Unsolved by Verdict

Somerville, N. J., December 3.—The Hall-Mills murder mystery, the most engaging in the criminal annals of this generation, remains unsolved. Beneath the gnarled branches of a crabapple tree on the Phillips farm were found the bodies of the Rev. Edward Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, his choir singer sweetheart. They had kept a secret tryst there on the night of September 14, 1922. They never returned home. Someone had fired a bullet into the rector's brain, and three into the body of Mrs. Mills. Her throat was slashed and her tongue had been cut out.

Ends in Tragedy

It was an age-old story of illicit love and like many other such loves in history, it ended in tragedy. The Rev. Hall was a 41-year-old minister when he married Frances Noel Stevens, seven years his senior. Frances Noel Stevens was serious, almost severe, of an influential family, and wealthy in her own right. Quite the opposite was Mrs. Mills, a woman in her early 30's. She had married James Mills, a colorless church sexton. He was an amiable, unassuming man, who desired to love and be loved; to lead a life of culture. Then came the Rev. Hall, the handsome, intellectual, and brilliant. Lured rapidly. They are known to have contemplated divorce and an elopement to Japan.

Climax of Love Affair

The climax of the love affair was reached on the late mid-September night, when they met in a secluded spot under the famous crabapple tree off De Russys lane. The tragedy was discovered on the second morning, a Saturday, by a youth and his sweetheart. New Brunswick was aroused. Then a watchman told of seeing Mrs. Hall enter her home early Friday morning.

Suspicion was directed toward Mrs. Hall, and her brother, "Willie" Stevens, who had been regarded as an eccentric. Another brother, Henry Stevens, lived in the fishing village of LaVallette, 50 miles away. He had a reputation for skill in small firearms.

An investigation was started. Mrs. Jane Gibson, keeper of a pig farm, told an assistant attorney general that she had identified one or more of the Stevens family on a nocturnal visit through De Russys lane on the night of the tragedy.

No Action Is Taken

The grand jury was never called to testify and the jury disbanded without an indictment. That was four years ago.

The widow then settled down to her former mode of living and twice during the ensuing years she made trips to Italy. The mystery faded from the public mind until last summer.

A New York newspaper suddenly announced that it had information incriminating the Stevens family. An investigation was ordered by Governor A. Harry Norman, who was then in office. He appointed Senator Alexander Simpson to prosecute the case.

Four Are Arrested

The state made its first move. Mrs. Hall and her brother, "Willie" Stevens, were arrested. Henry Carpenter, a cousin, a member of the New York Stock exchange, also was arrested, but his trial was deferred. The case came to a trial November 3, 1926, under an indictment naming specifically the murder of Mrs. Mills. With surprising suddenness the state began its presentation of evidence. John Dickson of North Plainfield, 11 miles from New Brunswick, testified that on the night of the murder, a man, whom he identified as "Willie" Stevens, had called at his home and asked the way to the Parker house, near the murder scene. "Willie" was described as an epileptic, as wearing a derby and as wearing glasses. Then came the climax of the state's case.

Mrs. Gibson, the "pig woman," who was ill of a complication of diseases, was moved from a hospital in Jersey city, 35 miles away, to the courtroom.

Pig Woman's Story

She told a graphic story of hearing the pistol shot and identifying Mrs. Hall, "Willie" Stevens and Henry Stevens as present at the scene. As attendants gathered at her bed, she raised her head and cried: "I've told the truth, so help me God, and you know it." A white hand was flung toward the defendants.

In all, 84 witnesses were called by the state. Simpson rested his case on Friday, November 12.

The defense opened with an attack upon Dickson's story. Witnesses swore Willie Stevens had never worn a derby hat, invariably wore eyeglasses and was not a victim of epilepsy. Experts were called to deny the fingerprint testimony.

The three defendants clinched the victory and won the sentiment of the court when they took the stand. Henry Stevens, stolid and businesslike.

Somerville Is Jubilant

VINDICATION HELD VICTORY FOR TOWN

Over Hall-Mills Verdict

BY RAY B. JOHNSON.
Somerville, N. J., December 3.—Somerville, a village of middle-class tradesmen and retired farmers, was jubilant at the outcome of the Hall-Mills trial. Its citizens felt the vindication of Mrs. Hall and her brothers was in some way a victory for the town and county. The news of the verdict was flashed from the courtroom to the crowds in the corridors set up a shout. The word reached the street with the speed of a radio message and the cheer that went up brought staid citizens running across the courthouse lawn.
The sentiment in favor of Mrs. Hall and her brothers had been growing since the beginning of the trial. And when the three were acquitted the town hailed the verdict almost as a personal victory.
Expressions of sympathy for the sister and her two brothers were freely expressed while the crowd waited impatiently for the verdict.
Judge Parker rapped for order.
Judge Warns Audience.
"The court has a word to say to the audience," he began. "This case has been one of exceptional importance, of popular interest and excitement. The court has tried to have it conducted with sobriety and solemnity befitting its importance. There will be no demonstration, either of applause or otherwise, and the officers will see that this order is enforced."
But this time, all the eleven defense attorneys and detectives were in the courtroom, grouped about the defendants, but on the state's side of the little well before the judge's bench, there were only two persons. Prosecutor Francis Bergen, of Somerset, and a youthful assistant.
After the jury had been polled, Judge Parker said to them that they would require a separate verdict for each of the defendants.
"Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict?" intoned the nervous clerk.
"We have," came a mumbled chorus from the jurors.
"Who will render it?"
"The foreman."
Jury Renders Verdict.
The latter, a stooped, gray-haired teamster, Frank A. Dunster, hitched forwardly and said:
"Do you find the defendant, Henry Stevens, guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty," he replied in a low voice.
A sound was heard in the courtroom. Henry Stevens swallowed painfully, but gave no other sign.
"Do you find the defendant, Willie Stevens, guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty," he replied in a low voice.
Mrs. Hall's younger brother, who was called eccentric before the trial began, blinked his big eyes, but did not move.
"Do you find the defendant, Frances Hall, guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty."
Pats Uncle's Hand.
Mrs. Hall, composed as ever, submitted to her cousin's embrace. She smiled and patted Willie's head. They all sat there unmoved. When the last of the three verdicts was made known, there was an uproar at the doorway.
Judge Parker hammered for order, and cried:
"Bring that man here."
It turned out to be a reporter, who had been trying to get out to send his newspaper the final verdict. The crossing story which has been read from coast to coast for the past month. Judge Parker dealt leniently with the offender and permitted his release.
Celebration Begins.
Mrs. Hall moved swiftly from the courtroom and returned to jail with her brothers, where they celebrated in their own quiet fashion.
Henry and "Willie" had to remain in jail overnight, with their cousin, Henry de la Bruere Carpenter, who congratulated them as they reached his cell.
Mrs. Hall, who was freed on bail last night, returned to her New Brunswick home, the home she occupied with the murdered pastor up to the time of the murders, and the home she has since occupied for the rest of her days.
"Why should I go away?" asked the widow in answer to a question as she stepped into her limousine.
The right thing is done, and the verdict will be accepted as final, not only in New Jersey but everywhere. My home is here, and here I will live.
Defense Is Jubilant.
Meanwhile, defense counsel were slapping each other on the back in the courtroom.
Robert H. McCarter, the senior counsel for the defense, whose brilliant summation Wednesday and Thursday won the high spots of the trial, grinned and chuckled and pranced around with Senator Clarence Case, who also was beaming with satisfaction.
Red-haired Robert Nelson danced a jig and there was hand-shaking as though the verdict had not been expected.
Soon only a litter of papers, lunch boxes and empty bottles remained in the courtroom where the dramatic events of the past month took place.
Chattering excitedly, the spectators elbowing their way out, the crowd took to their less fortunate fellow-townsmen all about it.

CHARLOTTE MILLS WEEPS
DURING ARGUMENT.
Somerville, N. J., December 3.—Charlotte Mills, who has absent herself from the trial of Mrs. Hall and her brothers, was brought for the court clerk, who was the most nervous man in the room as he stood to poll the jury.
Twelve men, many of them bent and gray, but few youthful entered through the little paneled door.
The jurors lined up in front of Judge Parker and County Judge Cleary, who had taken their places on the bench.
"Willie" leaned over to smile at his sister, but otherwise the defendants

Judge Warns Audience.
"The court has a word to say to the audience," he began. "This case has been one of exceptional importance, of popular interest and excitement. The court has tried to have it conducted with sobriety and solemnity befitting its importance. There will be no demonstration, either of applause or otherwise, and the officers will see that this order is enforced."
But this time, all the eleven defense attorneys and detectives were in the courtroom, grouped about the defendants, but on the state's side of the little well before the judge's bench, there were only two persons. Prosecutor Francis Bergen, of Somerset, and a youthful assistant.
After the jury had been polled, Judge Parker said to them that they would require a separate verdict for each of the defendants.
"Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict?" intoned the nervous clerk.
"We have," came a mumbled chorus from the jurors.
"Who will render it?"
"The foreman."
Jury Renders Verdict.
The latter, a stooped, gray-haired teamster, Frank A. Dunster, hitched forwardly and said:
"Do you find the defendant, Henry Stevens, guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty," he replied in a low voice.
A sound was heard in the courtroom. Henry Stevens swallowed painfully, but gave no other sign.
"Do you find the defendant, Willie Stevens, guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty," he replied in a low voice.
Mrs. Hall's younger brother, who was called eccentric before the trial began, blinked his big eyes, but did not move.
"Do you find the defendant, Frances Hall, guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty."

Mrs. Hall, composed as ever, submitted to her cousin's embrace. She smiled and patted Willie's head. They all sat there unmoved. When the last of the three verdicts was made known, there was an uproar at the doorway.

The court has tried to have it conducted with sobriety and solemnity befitting its importance. There will be no demonstration, either of applause or otherwise, and the officers will see that this order is enforced."
But this time, all the eleven defense attorneys and detectives were in the courtroom, grouped about the defendants, but on the state's side of the little well before the judge's bench, there were only two persons. Prosecutor Francis Bergen, of Somerset, and a youthful assistant.
After the jury had been polled, Judge Parker said to them that they would require a separate verdict for each of the defendants.
"Gentlemen of the jury, have you reached a verdict?" intoned the nervous clerk.
"We have," came a mumbled chorus from the jurors.
"Who will render it?"
"The foreman."
Jury Renders Verdict.
The latter, a stooped, gray-haired teamster, Frank A. Dunster, hitched forwardly and said:
"Do you find the defendant, Henry Stevens, guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty," he replied in a low voice.
A sound was heard in the courtroom. Henry Stevens swallowed painfully, but gave no other sign.
"Do you find the defendant, Willie Stevens, guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty," he replied in a low voice.
Mrs. Hall's younger brother, who was called eccentric before the trial began, blinked his big eyes, but did not move.
"Do you find the defendant, Frances Hall, guilty or not guilty?"
"Not guilty."
Pats Uncle's Hand.
Mrs. Hall, composed as ever, submitted to her cousin's embrace. She smiled and patted Willie's head. They all sat there unmoved. When the last of the three verdicts was made known, there was an uproar at the doorway.
Judge Parker hammered for order, and cried:
"Bring that man here."
It turned out to be a reporter, who had been trying to get out to send his newspaper the final verdict. The crossing story which has been read from coast to coast for the past month. Judge Parker dealt leniently with the offender and permitted his release.
Celebration Begins.
Mrs. Hall moved swiftly from the courtroom and returned to jail with her brothers, where they celebrated in their own quiet fashion.
Henry and "Willie" had to remain in jail overnight, with their cousin, Henry de la Bruere Carpenter, who congratulated them as they reached his cell.
Mrs. Hall, who was freed on bail last night, returned to her New Brunswick home, the home she occupied with the murdered pastor up to the time of the murders, and the home she has since occupied for the rest of her days.
"Why should I go away?" asked the widow in answer to a question as she stepped into her limousine.
The right thing is done, and the verdict will be accepted as final, not only in New Jersey but everywhere. My home is here, and here I will live.
Defense Is Jubilant.
Meanwhile, defense counsel were slapping each other on the back in the courtroom.
Robert H. McCarter, the senior counsel for the defense, whose brilliant summation Wednesday and Thursday won the high spots of the trial, grinned and chuckled and pranced around with Senator Clarence Case, who also was beaming with satisfaction.
Red-haired Robert Nelson danced a jig and there was hand-shaking as though the verdict had not been expected.
Soon only a litter of papers, lunch boxes and empty bottles remained in the courtroom where the dramatic events of the past month took place.
Chattering excitedly, the spectators elbowing their way out, the crowd took to their less fortunate fellow-townsmen all about it.

CADETT DISCUSSES TRAFFIC ACCIDENT CAUSES

BY THOMAS CADETT.
(Editor's Note—Thomas Cadett, of the London Times, is the holder of the Walter Hines Page newspaper fellowship, and is spending a year in America under the terms of the fellowship. He has temporarily joined the staff of The Constitution. Mr. Cadett has served on the staffs of The San Francisco Chronicle and The Chicago Daily News. The Constitution was selected, without his knowledge, as the representative southern newspaper on which he is to serve in getting a national acquaintance with American conditions.)

BY THOMAS CADETT.
A mass accident, a shipwreck, or any other unusual catastrophe that takes sudden and an unusual toll of human life always stirs the imagination. Public pity and sympathy are aroused, and various people set to work upon the elimination of all possible risk. It is only recently, however, that there has been any real realization of the daily slaughter that goes on in the streets in an automobile traffic has assumed its present dimensions. Yet the tally at the end of the year reduces any other hazard to negligible proportions by mere comparison of figures.

In London, a city of seven million people, the average daily death toll from traffic accidents is two people. In Chicago it is a fraction less than that figure; New York, I imagine, has an even larger number, and Paris does not lag behind. Nobody can hope to eliminate accidents entirely, although a degree of caution by no means superhuman would everywhere reduce the number: one hundredth of its present size; the ever-growing flow of automobile production and sales must make the problem more difficult. Even so, however, the vast majority of accidents are preventable.

The causes of accidents are obvious enough, forming an unholy trinity of carelessness, recklessness and drunkenness, which almost invariably covers one or both of the two first-mentioned causes. We have the same problem in England; we have not yet solved it, for the simple reason that it is completely insoluble. Nevertheless, the careless or reckless driver gets short shrift, the drunken driver none at all.

In the first place, every motorist has to procure a yearly license to drive. If he drives without one, he infringes the law and is liable to a heavy fine or imprisonment, with the probability in favor of prison. Any serious offense against the laws in respect to automobiles is recorded upon the license, both as a caution and a reminder, in the case of further offenses, to the authorities that the license holder is a dangerous driver. In this manner, a complete check is kept upon every driver in the country. No license is issued to people below the age of 17; at the moment no test or proof of driving capacity is required, which is an obvious imperfection, but there is an increasing public sentiment in favor of such a modification. At any moment and in any place, the police may take it into their heads to demand to see one's license; very often, indeed, the police of a whole town will devote one day to such a check.

Offenses against the public safety, as far as driving is concerned, fall into various categories, and the system of punishment is, on the whole, very fair. A man who commits one serious offense will usually have his license revoked for several months; for every repetition the period is extended; there is always prison for the kind of carelessness amounting to manslaughter.

Under this heading comes drunkenness. For a long time in England the drunken motorist was a familiar sight. His number increased to such an extent that the public suddenly grew alarmed and even began to think. We are usually reasonably tolerant people. We allow to every man the right to drink himself unconscious if he wishes to do so; but he must do it in his home, with his hostess, and he must not drive a car. Drunkenness alone is not a crime; "drunk and disorderly," however, is.

In jail offense. Now, when people begin to think, they realize that the drunken motorist is not as other men are; he is a man who voluntarily yields up his reason and the normal care that most of us exercise in daily life; who, having done so, proceeds to do what he is least qualified to do, that is to drive a car. And from being a pleasant amply ordinary lands, the car becomes a dangerous weapon wielded by a maniac.

The proper amount of indignation can easily be achieved by the exercise of one's imagination. To lose one's life, or to be robbed of someone who matters, simply because somebody else chooses not merely to get drunk, but to get drunk and drive a car, is the sort of joke that requires a better developed sense of humor than most British people possess. And so, once the charge of drunkenness while driving has been proved—naturally innocence is presumed where there is a doubt—such an offense in England today is one of the many easy ways into jail. It is not necessary even to be involved in an accident, the mere act of driving is enough.

I make no suggestions; I merely record facts. One of them is that Atlanta has suddenly taken thought of its traffic situation; the other is that several drunken motorists were penalized by fines when I attended the local police court.

ARTIST SERIES SEAT SALE OPENS TODAY
Seats for the concert to be given at the city auditorium next Tuesday night by the Tipica orchestra, the national orchestra of Mexico, will go on sale this morning at 9 o'clock at the city auditorium. The concert, which comes next Tuesday, is composed of over 30 Mexican musicians, with Professor D. Jose Briseño as conductor. During the concert, the orchestra will play the music of the national Mexican costume. The music is said to be of a peculiar haunting charm, being typically Spanish in its origin.

At the same time and place, season reservations for the series of three attractions to be given at the auditorium in the current artist series, may be made. This series of three includes Feodor Chaliapin, with his own company, presenting Rossini's "Barber of Seville" on December 14; Frieda Hempel, in recital on January 14, and Mikhail Mordukhai, with the Russian ballet on March 9. By making season reservations now, a much lower rate, and advance choice of seat location, may be secured.

"ECONOMY FLOOR" AT REGENSTEIN'S WILL OPEN TODAY
Opening sale in the new "economy fashion floor," which will be operated at Regenstein's, 40 Whitehall street, will be held this morning. It was announced Friday that the "economy floor" is located on the third floor and will be devoted entirely to full fashion merchandise at moderate prices.

This idea is somewhat of an innovation in Atlanta merchandising and is expected to attract a large number of new patrons. It will mean that every day will be a sale day at Regenstein's and women may visit the store at any time and find dresses, hats, coats and other ready-to-wear clothing at reduced prices.

For the opening sale this morning there will be offered 2,000 dresses, 1,500 hats, 500 coats and hundreds of pieces of fine lingerie. Irving Kessler, manager, announced. All will be priced low, in line with the policy of the new department, but will be of the highest class of ladies' wear. Mr. Kessler, who will be in charge of the new department, including the buying, has had long experience as a buyer. He formerly was a buyer with Bloomingdale's in New York. The entire success for the new "economy fashion floor" has been bought especially for the department, Mr. Kessler said.

He said that operation of the new floor will not in any way conflict with the other two floors. Regenstein's has been in operation in Atlanta 54 years and has a reputation for offering exclusive styles and fine merchandise. The opening sale will begin at 8:30 o'clock this morning.

LIGHT SHOWERS ARE PREDICTED THIS AFTERNOON
Light showers late this afternoon accompanied by much warmer temperatures are scheduled for tomorrow, according to C. F. von Herrmann, local official meteorologist. Although showers are expected, they will be very light and will not fall until late in the afternoon or early night, Mr. von Herrmann stated.

Temperatures for today are expected to range between 45 and 64 degrees. Temperatures tomorrow range from 41 as the minimum to 62 during the early hours of the afternoon.

Observe Amber Light Signals, Mackall Urges

The importance of pedestrians and motorists obeying the amber caution signal in the three-light control of traffic, was stressed by K. W. Mackall.

K. W. MACKALL.

noted traffic signal engineer, of Syracuse, N. Y., Friday evening, in an address before the Atlanta chapter of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. The address was delivered in the chemistry building at Tech, and attended by a large number of Atlantans interested in traffic control.

Mr. Mackall declared that the three-light system as used in Atlanta was the most practical method yet evolved, and that the synchronized working of all lights from one central station was by far the most feasible one ever tried.

The amber caution light, which means that motorists and pedestrians crossing an intersection must clear it at once, and that pedestrians and vehicles waiting for the "go" signal must not start until the amber light has changed to green, is the safety valve of the three-way system, he said, and the perfect working of the system cannot be achieved until it is obeyed.

There as Protection.
"Treating the amber," said Mr. Mackall, "has become a popular pastime, and it can be stopped only by police supervision. The amber light has been placed in signal lights as a protection for both vehicles and pedestrians, as well as to clear the intersections so as to give a free movement to traffic and pedestrians waiting their turn to cross. Obedience to this light will mean a better, safer movement of traffic."

Mr. Mackall also declared that the use of isolated signal towers—that is, lights placed at various street intersections in residential districts, such as those in Atlanta at Ponce de Leon and Boulevard, and other places—was becoming more and more general throughout the country, and actually was proving the salvation of cities with outlying traffic problems to solve. Hundreds of them will be in use in Atlanta before the city solves its problem, he said.

Describes Other Systems.
He described in detail the many systems of traffic control in the United States, adding that in 95 per cent of them, the three-light synchronized system was used. He illustrated the different systems by lantern slides, showing the many systems tried, as well as the practical installation of some of them. C. E. Bennett, manager of the electrical department of the Georgia Railway and Power company, chairman of the Atlanta chapter, who arranged for Mr. Mackall's address, introduced the speaker.

After his address, Mr. Mackall answered a number of questions regarding the control of traffic by signal lights.

YUCATAN EXPLORER TELLS AGNES SCOTT OF DISCOVERIES
Decatur, Ga., December 3.—(Special.)—Gregory Mason, writer, who has just returned from Yucatan, where he explored the remains of buried cities and ruins of tombs, spoke tonight at Agnes Scott college, under the auspices of the Agnes Scott Lecture association.

His lecture was profusely illustrated with colored stereoscopic pictures. His subject was "The Lost Cities of the Yucatan—America's Egypt."

The lecture was held in the gymnasium auditorium and the speaker was introduced by Miss Cloc Heaton, head of the history department of the college. A large audience was present.

FEARING ARREST, BOY BREAKS LEG IN JUMP OFF CAR
In an effort to escape arrest early Friday morning, Burnell Williams, 16, of 458 Lyle street, S. E., jumped from a running automobile and broke his leg. His brother, Gordon Williams, 18, and a companion, Hicks Bradford, 16, of 1256 McPherson street, are being held under charges of suspicion at police station. A fourth youth escaped.

The quartet are suspected of an attempt to disassemble and rob an automobile in Grant park, which officers claim, was stolen from D. T. Hubbard, 801 Trust company of Georgia building. The arrests were made by Patrolmen Ford and Watkins while on their rounds.

Williams was taken to Grady hospital for treatment while his brother and Bradford were locked up at the station house pending an investigation. Detectives A. L. Poole and S. A. Smith are investigating. The boys claimed ownership of both cars and said they were repairing them when the policemen approached.

POSTAL INSPECTOR RETURNS TO ATLANTA
Horne G. Reese, of Plant City, Fla., who resigned from the postal inspection service three years ago to enter business in Plant City, has been reinstated in the service and reported for duty Friday, according to announcement by Joe P. Johnston, inspector in charge.

Mr. Reese, who served as postoffice clerk at Westminster, Md., as a boy, became a mail agent in 1904, and in 1906 was made a postoffice inspector. He is well known throughout the Atlanta district, having gained many friends in this section.

NEW SHOALS BILL THREATENS DELAY

Washington, December 3.—(AP)—Injection of a new angle into the Muscle Shoals question was assured today when Senator Ernst, republican, Kentucky, agreed to introduce the bid of eastern capitalists, championed by C. Bascom Sloop, former secretary to President Coolidge.

This bid promises to break up the old lines existing at the last session and may result in the whole issue being referred back to the senate agriculture committee for hearing. If this course is followed parliamentarians do not believe a bill would be reported out in time for action at this session.

A number of senators who favored the bid of the southern power companies for a 50-year lease of Muscle Shoals for the manufacture of fertilizer and sale of power, which was recommended by the special joint congressional committee, are now known to favor further study of the entire subject.

Two Urge Delay.
Among these is Senator Sackett, republican, Kentucky, a member of the joint committee who declared today he favored converting Muscle Shoals into a gigantic fertilizer factory to produce all the fertilizer the American farmers will consume, and use the proceeds from the sale of surplus power toward operating the fertilizer unit.

Senator McNary, republican, Oregon, who will be chairman of the senate agriculture committee, declared that in view of the new bid, it might be wise to refer the measure back to the committee for an investigation.

Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, veteran advocate of the government operation, said he was opposed to all the pending private bids, but would favor turning proposed legislation back to the committee.

Match Firm Seeks Power.
Meantime the Diamond Match company is negotiating for a part of Muscle Shoals for the manufacture of matches in the south close to timber tracts. They hope to get a part of the power regardless of the disposition of the property. If the company succeeds in its negotiations it plans to move a part of its operations from its eastern tract to the south to save transportation costs.

The Sloop proposal styled the farmers' bill, proposes to make as much fertilizer as the market will consume and distribute the remaining power under a 50-year lease with a rental plan, which the supporters claim will amortize the property during the term of the lease. The plant would be operated by a corporation. Mr. Sloop has declined to make public the identity of the financiers back of the bid.

ATLANTA M. E. CHURCH HEARS REV. COGGINS
The third day's session of the Atlanta M. E. conference began at 9 o'clock Friday with Bishop R. E. Jones presiding.

Dr. J. N. C. Coggins, who is transferring from the Atlanta to the Mt. Calvary M. E. church, New York, presided at the opening of the conference.

Dr. F. H. Butler, secretary of the Epworth league, headquarters in Chicago, brought a message from his organization, as well as a report of the board of home missions and church extension, of Philadelphia, gave an address in which he urged the pastors and laymen to get behind the program of the church.

Thursday night the conference was entertained by the South Atlanta M. E. church choir and a chorus from Clark university. Dr. I. Garland Penn., a general secretary of the board of education of the M. E. church, was presented by Dr. M. S. Davage, the president of Clark university, who was master of ceremonies. Dr. Penn spoke of the progress negro schools and colleges of the church have made. He said there were 14 colleges and secondary schools in the system and three professional schools. Four of the colleges, which include Clark university, had attained a class "A" rating.

Rev. C. W. Adams was elected conference treasurer and Rev. Joseph Griffith reporter to the press.

STANDARD OF N. Y. PLANS $50,000,000 ISSUE OF BONDS
New York, December 3.—(AP)—The second large piece of Standard Oil financing this week was announced tonight in the form of a $50,000,000 issue of 25-year 4 1/2 per cent debenture bonds of the Standard Oil company of New York, which will be offered to the public by a syndicate headed by Dillon, Read and company.

The offering price is 97 3/4 and interest to yield 4.67 per cent. On Monday of this week, J. P. Morgan and company, formally offered an issue of $120,000,000 five per cent debentures of the Standard Oil company of New Jersey at 100 1/2, but virtually all of the bonds previously were subscribed for by holders of preferred stock, which is to be retired by the proceeds of the issue and the sale of additional common stock.

TO GRADE MORELAND SCHOOL PLAYGROUND
Grading of the Moreland Avenue school ground during the Christmas holiday season was assured Friday afternoon when the sewer committee of city council voted to make sewerage alterations as a prerequisite of the grading, which will be done by Fulton county.

Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson, member of the board of education from the sixth ward, appeared before the committee and asked that the city cooperate with the county in the project. The committee agreed and work on the sewerage connection to drain the raised grade will begin at once.

Other routine business was transacted.

'CUE WILL OPEN NEW FIRE STATION TODAY
Members of city council, heads of departments of the city government, the mayor and members of Fulton county commission will be guests of Alderman Charles M. Ford, of the tenth ward, at a barbecue at the formal opening of Fire Station No. 20 at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Ford is a member of the fire board and was a staunch champion of the new station to protect the Sylvan Hills section of the city. The station has just been completed at a cost of $16,500. It is located at Stewart and Dill avenues.

Mr. Ford stated that because of lack of time, invitations to attend the barbecue may not have reached all the officials, but urged them to attend.

CONTEST LOOMS FOR 1927 MAYOR PRO TEM PLACE
Names of Aldermen W. Guy Dobbs and Oscar H. Williamson were mentioned prominently Friday as possible contestants in the race for mayor pro tem of the city of Atlanta in next year's council. Mr. Dobbs has been a rumored candidate for the past several days, but with the injection of Mr. Williamson a battle for the honor loomed.

Reports in city hall circles Friday were that friends of Mr. Williamson will begin an active campaign in his behalf. He has been a member of council for the past 12 years, a record equaled only by Alderman Claude Ashley, of the fourth, Mr. Dobbs is from the seventh ward.

The position of mayor pro tem is second only to that of the mayor in importance and responsibility. The officer presides over council and the aldermanic boards and acts as mayor in the absence of the chief executive.

SKIN TROUBLE COVERS BODY

At last finds treatment which cleared it away in few days

Badger, Minn., March 1:—"A while ago I was troubled with a skin disease, a mild case of itch, which was very distressing. It began on my leg and was most aggravating; the more I scratched it, the more it itched. Finally a number of tiny pimples formed and soon spread all over my body. It became so bad that I did not know what to do about it and was going to consult a physician when a friend of mine suggested that I try Resinol Ointment. I bought a jar the next day and was delighted with the relief I obtained after the first application. A few more treatments and the itch was entirely gone. I have also used Resinol Soap and Ointment for blackheads and pimples and it helped wonderfully. I cannot praise Resinol enough for all the good it has done me." (Signed) Celia Stoffel, Star Route.

TIME FOR A CHANGE.

In a communication published in The New York Times recently, "Laf" G. Walker, of the editorial staff of The Chattanooga Times, made the suggestion that a southern man should be on the next national democratic ticket. He suggested Smith, of New York, and George, of Georgia—a "north-and-south ticket."

Of Senator Walter F. George the Chattanooga editor said:

"I believe George has the making of a strong leader. He made a bad start, but has recovered himself with admirable skill, and emerges with added strength and poise as a representative of a whole people rather than a mere segment wherein he got his votes. Georgia has a mighty hold on southern sentiment, and she has the timber to offer for the structure."

This is a deserved tribute to an outstanding democratic leader. Senator George is eminently fitted by training, ability, character, poise, party loyalty and statesmanship for any position in the gift of the democrats of the nation.

"The particular paragraph in Mr. Walker's communication that gets right down to the milk in the cocoanut follows:

"It is about time the 'penalty' of the south should be withdrawn. Sixty years after, with her record of loyalty, her stern determination to restore her lost fortunes and retrieve her prestige among the states of the union—all faithfully and incantly carried out—until the southern people to participation in the executive affairs of the nation, or at least to a step in the direction of participation in its executive affairs."

This is an unanswerable statement, and especially as it may be applied to any action by the democratic national convention in nominating the party's presidential candidates.

The Constitution has gone even further than Mr. Walker. It made the statement recently and now repeats, that the democrats should nominate a southern man for president. It pointed to Governor McLean, of North Carolina, as a man particularly well qualified for the nomination by reason of his great business-like administration in that state, which has attracted nationwide attention, and by reason of North Carolina's foremost position among the progressive, enterprising, economically prosperous states of the union.

That suggestion has met with wide favor. Letters of support for it have poured into The Constitution, not only from many sections of the south, but from the east and middle west.

There are many capable men among southern democratic leaders who are as well qualified for the presidency as any from the ranks of either party from any other section of the United States.

The point is—and it is one to be emphasized above individuals—

Why should the south, which is the bedrock of the democratic party, always united for party victory, with its great majority of electoral votes, sit idly and indifferently by, as if under the strain of intimidation, and actually nominate national candidates from republican states and sections in the north and west just because there was a war in this country 60 odd years ago?

Why not assert the inalienable right of party leadership in view of the unvarnished truth that there can be no party victory—indeed, no democratic party—without the south?

We democrats of the south have slept upon our rights long enough. We have gone for candidates to republican strongholds long enough. We boast of a united country, and yet we trudge along in the rear ranks of the party procession with four-fifths of the procession to our credit.

We talk of the south leading the nation in industrial development, in population gains, in agricultural wealth. We know it's true, but when it comes to nominating a democratic leader we forget that the south has as good brains, as safe leaders, as can be found in the nation.

We accept discrimination as with apologies. It is all wrong. We agree with the Chattanooga editor—"It is time to withdraw this penalty."

CHANGES HIS VIEWS.

Senator Royal S. Copeland, democrat, of New York, is a personal "dry," and has been until now one of the outstanding "dry" members of the senate, both in his official and political capacities.

He now announces that he will vigorously advocate a modification of the Volstead act and that he is at work on a bill to carry out the mandate of the recent referendum in his home state.

Senator Copeland, who is a medical doctor, has given serious thought to the physical and mental wreckage that clusters the poison hooch streams in this country, and to the moral wreckage that follows in the wake of the growing whisky traffic everywhere.

He is quoted as believing the grave abuses that have grown out of prohibition and its enforcement and the widespread violation of the prohibition law ought to make all good citizens sit up and take notice and awaken them to the fact that people cannot be made moral through legislation—that "the process must begin in the hearts and minds of men and women."

Senator Copeland is one of the leading Methodist laymen of his state. Besides being a devout member of St. Andrew's Methodist Episcopal church in New York city and one of its officers, he is a trustee of Syracuse university and of Drew seminary. He is identified with the project of the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reissner which involves the erection of a skyscraper church on upper Broadway.

When men of such position in the affairs of state and church take the view that the present conflicting and sumptuary Volstead act is unwittingly defeating the very purposes for which intended, is adding to immorality, to home wreckage, to destitution, to law violations and to disrespect for the fundamentals of government and of ordinary personal decency, it is time to "sit up and take notice."

It is folly to attempt to repeal the eighteenth amendment. No good citizen wants to see a return of the saloon. But every thoughtful person must admit the present situation is intolerable and something must be done to remedy it. Every movement that has recently been made by the federal prohibition unit is an admission that enforcement is today a miserable failure, with the conditions growing worse instead of better.

DISTINGUISHED VISITOR.

Atlanta had as its guest for a few hours Friday one of the most outstanding members of the majority in congress—Louis T. McFadden, republican, of the 15th Pennsylvania district, and chairman of the powerful house committee on banking and currency. He was the personal guest of Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the board of the Atlanta & Lowry National bank, and was entertained at luncheon by Mr. Maddox, at which occasion many prominent Atlantans met the distinguished visitor.

In private life Mr. McFadden is a practical banker, having begun service in the First National bank, his home city of Canton as an office boy, from which position he arose through all of the branches of service to the presidency. He is eminently fitted therefore to be the chairman of a committee that means so much to the banking and financial interests of America. He has served in congress continuously since the opening of the 64th, to which he was first elected.

The McFadden banking act, now pending, is a strengthening revision and modification of the federal banking laws and has generous support from bankers throughout the nation. This measure was discussed at the Friday luncheon in his honor. Georgia has a member of the banking and currency committee, Representative Charles H. Brand, of the eighth district, who is a close personal friend of the chairman.

The winter novelists are all at home, incubating sunshine stories for the early spring trade.

It's a world of "Christmas Children" now.

Of course it's a prosperous country, where we're able to see the twinkle of the winter fires in spite of the coal trust.

Just From Georgia

BY FRANK L. STANTON.

To a Mocking Bird.
I.
From what mad revels hast thou lately come?
From what charmed groves? From what delicious feast?
From what fair realm in heaven's arcadia?
From vales Arcadian where the lily east

First drinks the winking dew from morning's bloom,
Thy tender plumage
All ruffled with the passion of thy song
That seems to waft thee airily along?

II.
Haply in some dawn-dim Arcadian grove
Where the bright crocus stained the dewy glade
Saffron, swart Pan did seek thy virgin love, Musing beneath some covert, fragrant slight
And thou didst, like unwilling Syrinx, fly
And didst outery
To the fair gods in agony of heart, Who, melting changed thy form to what thy art.

III.
Lute-throated mocker of the warbling throat,
Thou sweet fountain dist
thou art
Thy maddest, thy wild ecstasy of
song?
Haply some note from great Apollo's lyre,
Striking thine ear, wrought in thine
amorous breast
That wells from thee like tinklings from the spring
Of Helicon, where all the muses sing.

IV.
Ah me! to rest beneath soft, mellow skies,
On up-dried mounds of daisies, and to list
Ceaselessly to thy fairy melodies Sweet chorister! the while the brooding white
Swoon down and pant on me where I do kneel,
Or coo to thee
Rare fragrance from my amaranthine bed Sweets from beneath my flowerpillowed head!

V.
Farewell, sweet bird, thy magic lay hath ceased:
Lo! vestal-hearted twilight walks
apace
Over low clouds that veil the pregnant east
I pledge with one white star that like the face
Of some coy Dryad, gleameth now again
Althwart the plain.
Now thou art gone, and all thy music dies
Throbbing upon my ear like honeyed sighs.

Just to Think.

The young local poet has reached the fine abundance of the Swinburnian note, as in this, from one of the latest:

"To hold you in my arms and feel
Your arms about me slowly stretch
And tell you that I love you true,
And hear you say you love me, too,
And then—Kiss you!"

History's Day Book

BY SAM W. SMALL.

DECEMBER 4.

The big day that has blown into ecclesiastical, social and legal circles of America and Europe, gendered by the verdict of the Rota Sacra of the Roman Catholic church annulling the marriage of the Duke of Marlborough to Consuelo Vanderbilt, recalls that it was a year ago today that a jury at White Plains, N. Y., refused to annul the marriage of a certain Kip Rhinelander to Alice Jones, the daughter of a mulatto cab-driver.

Rhineland is a nit-wit gilded member of the ancient Dutch aristocracy of Manhattan. On the witness stand and from the testimony given concerning him he does not seem to have common sense or education although kind of words, a salubrious and well-provisioned island.

While just drifting around in the eddies of dance halls and night clubs in New York he fell in with Alice Jones, who is what an old Georgian would call "light-complected" and in the glamor of low indecencies could pass for "white." Alice was something of a rouser and a yamp
and so played her charms and her cards as to enmesh this Rhineland
chump in a marriage.

They got along right merrily as man and wife until either Kip or his highbrow family got tired of the official situation. Kip retired, "on his own account," and Alice was something of a rouser and a yamp
and so played her charms and her cards as to enmesh this Rhineland
chump in a marriage.

Anyhow a sophisticated jury told Kip that his marriage was null and void because of his lawfully wedded wife he must stay put.

Minor Musings

Fewer human wrecks on the road and fewer car wrecks in the ditches.

Nobody is busier than a loafer explaining how busy he is.

Nobody wishes every law enforced to the letter because nobody wishes to be in jail.

In Italy they probably still believe that "the king can do no wrong," but also that he can do much good.

Some of the crusty old bachelors who have been missing "on his own account" since the war, had proved futile, and federal aid was intended to make roadbuilding a state function.

Is not this theory confirmed by experience, when we see today that we have money to last for a few years, but the program even as matters stand.

The injustice as well as the illegality of relying on the counties is all the greater since one cent of the gas tax goes to the counties for any kind of local road improvement they see fit to make. If it is wise to give them this local aid it is not a contradiction to take it away from a few of the counties, with the other hand, by practically requiring the more progressive

THE WORLD'S WINDOW

BY PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Cartooning
Uncle Sam.

French cartoonists continue to lampoon Uncle Sam. In one week's time we have had one caricature of the inhabitant of Mars running to their chief telling him that the earth would be a better place to live in if it were run by Uncle Sam. "Don't answer," says the chief Martian, "it may be those damned Americans trying to tell us we owe them money. Another saw Uncle Sam undressing a poor, bonny Frenchman and saying: 'Now I am going to clip your hair and shave your whiskers, because I need them.' Another cartoon shows France nailed to the cross and the American eagle ripping open the tortured body and sucking the blood. With a play of words, caption above, France is shown being hanged by a cord, the word play being the cord (accord-agreement) of Washington. Marianne is elsewhere pictured dipping her pockets for her last sou to pay U. S.
Siam, while in the distance advances the giant phantom of Napoleon with drawn sword saying: 'No, no, Marianne, etc.' Some of the cartoons are in-such had taste that they better be left unmentioned.

Sensative Terrorists.

In a volume of "Revolutionary Souvenirs" from Russia, composed by Irene Kachowsky, some strange adventures are told of czarist days. For instance, there is the case of the terrorist Boris Donkoi, who was selected shah Von Eichhorn, a German field marshal. Von Eichhorn passed very close, but would not throw the bomb he had in his pocket, because he might hurt someone else or hurt himself. The field marshal. Another time another nihilist shot down three high police officials in plain daylight on St. Petersburg's waiting back yard. He jumped in a waiting back yard, where the stock driver whipped up the horses in order to allow his client to escape the police.
But the nihilist pulled the cabby's arms and said: "Listen, no cruelty on my account. If you whip those poor horses once more I will get out and surrender myself."

Lenin Rediuous.

A new monument to Nicolai Lenin is being erected in Leningrad. It will face the Finland station. It will however, not be an ordinary statue of the type that adorn or disgrace so many noble thoroughfares. No, the bolshieviki, forever on the outlook for good propaganda media, will equip the statue with a "perfected" gramophone, an invention of the workman, Theo-fanov, the Russian papers tell us.
The gramophone records or plates are inscribed with the speeches of the great leader. And it was Lenin himself who pronounced them for phono-graphic preservation at the behest of far-seeing comrades.

Crucifixion Picture.

Frank Brangwyn, the British painter who executed a crucifixion picture for the church in a leper colony in South Africa, has been severely criticized for giving his subjects raw, ugly brutal faces, distorted by anger and passion. But Brangwyn has done right in departing from the serene, Christmas-card atmosphere, for the crucifixion was a monstrous and brutal thing. Mr. Brangwyn now replies to his critics and says: "I painted my 'stations' for the lepers, and for no one else. I had a clear object, which was simply to show them, as vividly as possible, that dark and painful as was their lives, there was a tragedy greater than their own —a tragedy which contained within itself their greatest hope. The pictures were not intended for the public, but, since the public seem to have been aroused by them, in just such measure they are successful. If they strike people as cruel I answer: 'So was the crucifixion, and I am glad that you appear to see that fact for the first time.'"

Your Boy and Your Girl

The Parent Counsellor
BY ARTHUR DEAN, SC. D.PARENTS WHO EAT THEIR CHILDREN.

Shocking title, not literally true, because we have civilized ourselves so we no longer eat human flesh. But do we kill our children, not literally, with a knife or a revolver, but with mean, nasty remarks, with undeserved thrashings, with false attitudes toward them, with a lack of respect for their personality? Yesterday I was thinking of the trials and tribulations of childhood, the tragedy in their lives, the killing of their spirits, the knowledge that they get relative to their vocational desires, and the blow-outs they receive when they try to express themselves emotionally. I had in mind calling the article "Parents Who Eat Their Children," but something came up which disturbed me in my dictation and I stopped writing. Today the mail brings me the very letter I want, so here it is:

"In our Bible, one of the command-

Thy Mother,' which always felt like an idiot on to that by saying, 'Yes, when they are worthy of it.' We, unfortunately, have to accept what we, as fate, get for parents. We have no say in regard to where the stock delivers us. I think that one of the most priceless possessions is a good father and mother, and if they bring up their children well, they deserve everything.
But on the other hand, what of children who get a mighty undesirable father and mother? I am sorry to say that the kind of father
I cannot look back on but very little happiness in all the years they lived and they both have passed away from this world. I think that it is not only those of horror over the abuse I took from them while they did live.
Perhaps I should have run away when they were still alive and gone to some other place and stuck to the last. But they took the very soul from my body.
Never can I forget the beatings they gave me. I was never allowed to —horse-whippings undressed. I just crawled into the corner and cringed and bore them until I was sick. The sack of rice was taken away and put in the bank for me. I was never died and left a good-sized bank account, and not one cent ever did me any good. They even led their money to the bank and I never saw the money. I am sending him this

State's Obligation
To Counties for

Editor Constitution: It is down-for repayment of the funds advanced by the counties for building state high-bonds based on direct taxes?

But the one point on which I keep hammering is that a provision which sets up a condition that the state system must be "completed" is a legal nullity, and since it conflicts with the letter and the spirit of all the highway legislation, state and national, must be read out of the act, so as to give effect to the plain mandate in a previous section, that the counties shall be repaid. Not only can the legislature add a mile every two years to the official system; it can change the route between two county seats time after time, as has been done already in many instances.
Would the city of Atlanta issue bonds to be paid "when the city of Atlanta is completed?"

Any law or part of a law which cannot be enforced is a legal nullity, and there is no escape from it. But some of our folks are timid and fear to go into court. Your editorial has heartened me much.

"ABLE SUPPORT."

(From The Macon News.)

In another column today we reproduce an editorial from The Atlanta Constitution, giving vigorous and unqualified support to Bibb county's contention that the counties in Georgia have no right to demand repayment of their own funds should be reimbursed.
Our esteemed contemporary shows a masterly grasp of the entire situation and shows in a convincing manner that the whole modern movement for good roads has been predicated on the idea of getting away from any reliance on the counties or other local units as an agency for road building.
The Constitution indorses our contention that the proviso which says we are not to be reimbursed until the state highway system is completed is so vague and uncertain that it cannot be enforced. It sets up a condition precedent which it is impossible to fulfill, and therefore is null and void, or at all events the courts should be asked to clear up the law.

And this is in the interest of the highway board and the people of Georgia quite as much as for Bibb county alone.

Milton C. Work's Pointer On How To Play Bridge

(Milton C. Work, the international bridge authority, will answer your auction bridge questions. A stamped self-addressed envelope must accompany each request for replies.)

When to take out partner's untrump suit with a Minor is a subject on which there are many different opinions. It is too complicated a question to fully discuss in one of these brief articles, but I shall attempt to outline the main points.

When there is a score, no matter how small, a Minor suit is a valuable asset. It is a strength and consequently should be treated accordingly. That is, the Major take-out rule would hold good. When there is no score I think a two take-out in a Minor should show weakness; and I do not believe in taking out with a Minor unless the bidding is so strong that it justifies a bid of three, thus announcing to the partner that it is a strength take-out which warrants forcing the partner to bid three No T.umps if he has fully other three suits safely protected.

Among those who believe in using the Minor two-bid as a weakness take-out or "rescue," there is some difference of opinion as to when it should be applied. Some use it invariably when they have the opportunity; but even when it is understood to be a rescue, and the No Trump bidder agrees to take it, it is not considered a rescue obligatory with every five-card Minor and a worthless hand—far from it. There are more of such hands with which I would pass than with which I would rescue; but when I do bid two of a Minor over partner's untrump suit I am making a love score my announcement: "No tricks in this hand to help a No Trump." Playing with this convention makes possible many important bids which would be barred to the Minor-strength shover. With holdings like the following, which I would bid, the Minor-strength shover would have to pass, as to bid would be most deceptive.

1. Sp.: None. Ht.: x-x-x. D.: x-x-x-x-x. Cl.: x-x-x-x-x.
2. Sp.: x. Ht.: x-x-x-x-x. D.: x. Cl.: x-x-x-x-x.
3. Sp.: Jack-x. Ht.: 10-x. D.: Jack-x-x-x-x. Cl.: x-x-x.

Of course there are hands with which the partner of a No Trump would like to be able, by a bid of two to show Minor strength; but my experience is that there are comparatively few with which the strength-showing is important enough of a uniform weakness convention. The weakness take-out in the Minor is a successfully stood the test of years, and it is earnestly recommended as being more simple, satisfactory and profitable than any other system.

The pointer for today is:
At a love score, a Minor take-out of partner's No Trump shows weakness.

Tomorrow we will consider a very different bidding problem, and as a suggestion of what it will be I am asking you the following question: What would you bid, as Dealer, with these three hands:

(It is any suit card—lower than Ten.)

STONE ASSOCIATION HEADS IN ATLANTA

Representatives from quarry and stone-producing industries and allied industries, including explosive and quarry implement manufacturers from Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, Alabama and Florida met Friday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the Alhambra hotel at a meeting of the American Crushed Stone Association.

The meeting was made possible when the national officers of the organization, who are on a month's tour of the United States, passed through Atlanta, en route to Tennessee, where another meeting will be held Saturday afternoon.

The national officers of the association gave talks on the work accomplished on the present tour and also spoke of the wonderful prospects for the industry in the immediate future. Officers of the association who made talks are: O. T. Graves, of Easton, Pa., president; A. T. Goldbeck, of Washington, vice president; J. B. Boyd, of Washington, secretary, and Thomas McCroskey, of Knoxville, Tenn., regional vice president for the southeastern division.

SEEK TO IDENTIFY ACCIDENT VICTIMS BY FINGER PRINTS

In further effort to identify the two youths who died Tuesday night shortly after they were found badly mangled on the W. & A. railroad crossing at Howell road near the Marietta street bridge, Captain M. J. Wright, head of the bureau of identification at police headquarters, forwarded to federal government authorities, at Washington, finger prints of the two corpses made Thursday.

REVISED SYSTEM FOR ACCREDITING SCHOOLS ADOPTED

State Superintendent of Schools, F. E. Land, has announced the adoption by the state board of education of "Minimum Standards for Accrediting Elementary Schools." "For a number of years the state high schools have been required to meet certain standards in order to attain the accredited standing," Mr. Land said. "The state superintendent and state board of education, after careful consideration, have decided that no school is stronger than the foundation upon which it is built. The elementary schools being the foundation upon which the whole educational structure of the state is built, therefore, to meet standards of thoroughness, based upon a maximum of pupils for any teacher, proved records, an enriched course of study, and well-qualified teachers. To strengthen the whole educational system and it is with this idea in view that the new accrediting system has been adopted."

Congressman McFadden Tells Atlantans Proposed Changes in Federal Bank Laws

Proposed measures to be submitted to congress at its approaching session in connection with the financial system of the country were outlined Friday in Atlanta by Louis T. McFadden, of Canton, Pa., congressman from that state and chairman of the important committee on banking and currency of the house of representatives, who was guest of Robert F. Maddox, chairman of the board of directors of the Atlanta and Lowry National bank, at a luncheon at the Atlanta Athletic club.

Congressman McFadden spoke particularly of that section of the proposed laws which adds to the power of national banks to lend larger amounts than formerly on commodities such as cotton and wheat. Under the present law loans are limited to the value of capital and surplus in this class of loans, and under the proposed measure this percentage would be materially increased.

"Had this provision been the law during the recent crisis in the cotton market it would have been unnecessary to form finance corporations to handle the surplus cotton," Mr. McFadden said. Mr. McFadden also discussed a movement to curtail as far as possible operation of chain banks.

"Chain-bank systems come more under state control than they do under national control," he said. "The chain bank, however, in my opinion is a menace."

WARNINGS LOWER TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Considerable decrease in traffic accidents were noted Thursday and Friday after warnings had been issued by Solicitor General John A. Bevin and Police Chief James L. Beavers to reckless auto drivers. Not a single accident of serious consequence was reported at police station yesterday and only two injuries from an automobile accident were reported at Grady hospital.

R. C. Hilton, transfer at Bellwood convict camp, was slightly cut about the forehead when thrown from a car in which he was riding near the camp. In the second accident, Walter Jeffries, of 10 Schuyler avenue, was treated at Grady hospital for minor injuries he said were received in an automobile accident.

Mrs. W. J. Hambright, of 634 Victoria street, College Park, was treated at Grady hospital Friday morning for serious injuries received in an automobile crash at Lakewood and Stewart avenues early Friday morning, according to hospital records.

According to information given to hospital attaches, Mrs. Hambright was riding in an automobile with her husband which collided with a car driven by C. H. Wright. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wright, who were en route to Florida from Ohio, escaped injury.

AKIN SENTENCED FOR KIDNAPING ATLANTA GIRLS

Bert Akin, of New York, was found guilty by a jury in Judge E. T. Thomas' division of Fulton superior court Friday on a charge of kidnapping and was sentenced to serve four years on the chain-gang.

Akin was jointly indicted with Elsie Burke, Bob Nelson and Bill Anderson in two true bills which alleged the kidnapping of two Atlanta girls, Margaret Gray and Kate Forbes. The girls were taken to Clearwater, Fla., presumably to solicit subscriptions for New York magazines, after they had answered an advertisement in an Atlanta paper. The prosecution contended that the girls were taken from their homes without the consent and knowledge of their parents. The defense attempted to prove that the defendant did not know the girls had no consent from their parents and had not forced them to leave the city.

Assistant Solicitor General Ed A. Stephens represented the state and Attorney William Schley Howard, the defendant. Attaches of the solicitor's office announced Friday that Elsie Burke, the second of the quartet named in the indictments, will be placed on trial early next week. The defendants are being tried separately.

LEADING CITIZENS ATTEND FUNERAL OF NEGRO SERVANT

A group composed of some of Atlanta's busiest and most distinguished men put all other affairs aside Friday afternoon and stood beside the grave of Sam Ware, aged negro servant of the Capital City club, who died Monday.

Forty years of loyalty and devotion to his duty won Sam the respect and friendship of the club members, who have cared for him during more than nine years of disability, brought on by an attack of paralysis. Sam was the first servant ever employed by the club. As the staff grew, Sam was put in charge of the force.

The group that attended Sam Ware's funeral included: Albert Howell, Jr., Dr. W. S. Elkin, John W. Grant, Robert F. Maddox, John Edward H. Inman, J. D. Robinson, John S. Cohen, Hugh S. Atkinson, J. W. Goldsmith, Edwin S. Johnson, Thomas H. Daniel, R. H. Martin. Directors who have signified their intention to attend are: James L. Dickey, E. Rivers, Marion Martin, W. Carroll Latimer, W. H. Glenn, W. T. Perskerson, Clark Howell, Jr., J. R. Gray, A. E. Thornton, R. W. Woodruff, Charles I. Ryan, T. J. Peeples, E. R. Austin and W. P. Timmie.

The funeral sermon was delivered by the Rev. J. L. Butler, pastor of Big Bethel A. M. E. church. James L. Dickey spoke of the old negro's faithfulness during his 40 years' service at the club, paying him a fitting tribute at the graveside. Assisting in the funeral services were: The Rev. J. H. McFarlin, the Rev. E. P. Johnson, the Rev. E. V. Thornton, the Rev. J. A. Hadley and the Rev. P. J. Bryant.

Wardlaw to Head Division in City Advertising Drive

With the opening of the intensive four-day drive scarcely more than a week away, members of the "Forward Atlanta" commission Friday speeded up advance work on the $1,000,000 advertising fund campaign. Headquarters of the campaign directors in the Chamber of Commerce building hummed like a bee hive during the day, with prospects for even more strenuous work during the approaching week.

Announcement Friday that W. C. Wardlaw, vice president of the Atlanta & Lowry National bank, will head the campaign workers as sales director of the special division was greeted with great interest. Ivan E. Allen held this position during the 1925 campaign. Other announcements Friday by William Candler, chairman of the organization, were that George W. West will lead the general sales organization, and is now busy with Roy LeCraw's assistance, in choosing district managers.

Achievements of the first national "Advertise Atlanta" campaign will be shown tonight at a dinner given by the Presidents' club at the Biltmore hotel. Jesse H. Neal, of New York, one of the most prominent figures in the advertising field today, will be the principal speaker. Members of the Forward Atlanta commission will be guests of honor.

Objectives of the three-year campaign were discussed Friday by prominent Atlantans at the meetings of the Citizens club, at the Athletic club and the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

In an address at the Citizens meeting, W. R. C. Smith, past president of the chamber of commerce, and a member of the "Forward Atlanta" commission, declared that the three-year program, following up the first year's work, is an "outstanding gesture that will lead to a multiplicity of industries being placed at the crossroads of every county in Georgia, with the result of bringing up tax values

ICE MAKERS END TWO-DAY SESSION HERE ON FRIDAY

"Refrigerator Sales and Services," was the topic discussed Friday at a two-day session of the Georgia Ice Manufacturers' association, which closed Friday afternoon at the Henry Grady hotel. Contracts for the coming year for refrigerator dealers in Georgia also were discussed at the meeting but due to many details yet to be worked out, actual letting of the contracts was not made public.

Practically every leading ice manufacturer in the state was present or had a representative at the two-day meeting.

Frank Kaye, of the Kaye Ice company, of Atlanta; C. B. Romberg, of Gainesville, Ga., and others were principal speakers at the Friday session.

HORSE SHOW TODAY AT GARDEN HILLS

Fifty of Atlanta's choicest horses and ponies have been entered at the horse and pony show which will be held this afternoon at Garden Hills. The show is expected to attract a large crowd and will be an event of much interest to lovers of fine horses. The show will open at 1:30 o'clock. Judges will be William Candler, Frank M. Stewart, Hunt Chipley and A. J. Wilson.

and reducing tax rates throughout the state."

Ivan Allen told the Citizens of the results of the $250,000 campaign. William Candler, chairman of the campaign organization, F. A. Wilson, Lawrence Russell, Roy LeCraw and W. R. Crites were among those who spoke before the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

OFFICER LEAVES TO RETURN TRAVIS

With necessary requisition papers, T. C. Moore, Muscogee county policeman, left Atlanta Friday night for Kings Mountain, N. C., to return R. L. Travis, escaped convict, to the Muscogee convict gang whence he escaped on November 3.

Travis was captured near Kings Mountain with another escaped convict, reported to be Walt Fisher, but believed by members of the prison commission to be Paul Miller, who escaped from the Hall county convict camp on November 8, while serving a term for automobile theft. The officer is expected to return both prisoners here.

Travis was serving a life term for the murder of Captain Pat Newsome. Fulton county convict guard, who was fatally wounded in a mutiny of North Side camp convicts, which resulted in the escape of Travis, Raymond Sisson and Dave Perkins. The three were apprehended three days following the mutiny near Canton, Ga.

The convict has been successful in three escapes but has been captured after his breaks for liberty a few days after each dash. He was tried in Fulton county and assigned to the Muscogee convict camp.

Walker Is Crowned Middleweight Champion of World

Challenger Defeats Negro Title Holder In Furious Battle

Flowers Loses Decision to Former Welterweight Champion Before Thousands in Chicago Ring—Tiger Is Fought Twice by Walker.

BY WALTER ECKERSALL.
(By Leased Wire to The Constitution.)

Chicago, December 3.—Mickey Walker, of Rumson, N. J., former welterweight king, won the world's middleweight championship from Deacon Tiger Flowers, of Atlanta, Ga., in a furious 10-round battle at the Coliseum here tonight.

The decision, which took the title away from the clever Flowers, was rendered by referee Bennie Yanger, known in the old days of boxing as the Tipton Slasher, but to those around the ring it looked as if the champion was entitled to the decision by a wide margin.

Tiger forced the milling, landed the scoring punches and on only a few occasions was in danger of defeat. After he had rendered his decision, Yanger told members of the press he gave the fight to Walker because Mickey did all the punching and Flowers did not close his hands but was content to hit with the open glove.

While this was true to a certain degree, it appeared to casual observers that Tiger had enough of an edge even if his style of fighting was discounted.

Miller Surprised. Walk Miller, manager of Flowers, was unable to explain the verdict. He simply said the referee must be right and called it a fight as he saw it. Flowers' manager asserted the champion was fouled on three occasions especially in the early stages of the mill. Flowers, however, took the verdict good-naturedly and put his arm around the new champion's neck when the verdict was rendered.

With the exception of a few rounds, Flowers did all the fighting. He led most of the time and made Walker back away from rallies.

Flowers left the ring without a mark, while Walker received a bad cut over his left eye in the second round. Tiger kept jabbing his opponent with his right hand on the sore spot for the remainder of the fight, with the result blood flowed from the wound in every round.

In the ninth round Walker did connect with a left hook and Flowers slipped to the canvas. He made a "kip" in getting to his feet and apparently was not even dazed by the blow. On two other occasions Mickey did connect with solid punches which

Alabama Is Only Southern Team To Invade Bowl Twice

New York, December 3.—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide, football champions of the south, for the third straight year, will make its second straight bid for post season honors if the team goes through with the proposed new year's day game with Stanford's Pacific coast championship eleven at Pasadena, Calif.

Since 1916, this contest, featuring the tournament of Roses celebration, has become an intercollegiate classic. Alabama was victorious over Washington last New Year's day in a thrilling game, 20 to 19, and has a chance to establish a record by winning from Stanford. Only one other university, California, has appeared in the tournament two years in a row and the Golden Bears, after defeating Ohio State, 28 to 0, in 1921, were held to a tie the following year by Washington and Jefferson.

In tournament contests since 1916, the Pacific coast's representatives have won four, while one triumph each has gone to the middle-west, east and south. Two games ended in ties. The results since 1916: 1916—Washington State 14; Brown 0. 1917—University of Oregon 14; Pennsylvania 0.

1918—No games because of world war. 1919—Harvard 7; University of Oregon 6. 1920—California 28; Ohio State 0. 1921—California 0; Washington and Jefferson 0.

1922—Southern California 14; Penn State 9. 1923—University of Washington 14; Naval Academy 14. 1924—Notre Dame 27; Leland Stanford 10. 1925—Alabama 20; University of Washington 19.

Flowers was particularly clever in slipping punches, and he caught many of the challenger's well-directed blows on his gloves and forearms. Some of Walker's punches, however, did find their intended marks, but Flowers always came back to either even up the score or landing more scoring punches.

In scoring the fight the writer gave Flowers five rounds, Walker two and three were awarded even. The champion showed to advantage in the second, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth rounds. Walker had a slight edge in the fourth and won the fifth.

Results of Preliminaries. Jackie Williams won the six-round decision over Harry Roberts. Both live in Chicago.

Langford, of Chicago, knocked out Jack Elkhart, of Dallas, Texas, in the fourth round.

Babe McGargary, of Tulsa, Okla., and Chuck Burns, of San Antonio, went eight rounds to a draw.

George Godfrey, of Chicago, stopped Cowboy Billy Owens, of Dallas, Texas, in the eighth round of the semi-windup.

Pittsburgh, December 3.—(AP)—Pittsburgh's Elmer Hunsicker has a special niche in the hall of football ground gainers for Gibby Welch, halfback, who this season piled up a grand total of 1,190 yards.

Pitt fans declare that this figure stacks up better than any previous total so far put forward. The gains of Charley Rogers of Penn have been 1,100 yards, or 60 more than Red Grange's record.

Elizabeth Ryan Off for England

New York, December 3.—(AP)—Miss Elizabeth Ryan, runner-up to Mrs. Molla Mallory in the women's national tennis championships last August at Forest Hills, sailed tonight for England, where she made her residence for a dozen years prior to returning to American courts in 1925. Recently she accompanied Eleanor Sears, Boston sportswoman, on a record-breaking walk from Providence to Boston.

Expected Here Today. Vadali and Jimmy Condos, the Greek star who grapples with Jack Roller in the one hour semi-windup, are expected to reach Atlanta today.

The fact that London is on the program insures the fans spending an exciting evening. London is one of the best wrestlers Contos has introduced to Atlanta fans and with Roller as his opponent should put up a grand fight.

Roller will have an advantage in weight and strength, but London hopes to overcome that with his speed and superior wrestling skill.

Bob Ruble, the Atlanta amateur, is ready for his bout with Pete Dallas in Birmingham some time ago and gave him a hard fight.

Olympic Athlete Is Chosen President

William C. Prout, Boston lawyer, who now heads the American Olympic committee, is the first former Olympic athlete to be chosen president of that body. He was a star quarter miler and junior national champion and a member of the 1908 Olympic team that went to London.

Leading Golfers Off for California

New York, December 3.—(AP)—The vanguard of golf's winter touring forces left New York today for California, where a series of five open tournaments this month and next have attracted entries of international importance.

Walter Hagen, former American and British open title holder, heads a group that will carry the east's banner in competition for prize money in excess of $20,000. Others are Mike Brady, Mac Smith, the Metropolitan champion; Bobby Crickshaw, Dan Williams, Cyril Walker, Leo Diegel, Johnny Farrell, Bill Mehlhorn, Joe Turnesa, Tommy Armour and John Golden.

George Dumen, British professional, is expected to join the contestants in a campaign which will spread later to Texas, Florida and other southern courses.

Benny Regan Wins Over Marty McCue

LaGrange, Ga., December 3.—(Special).—Benny Regan, of Atlanta, won a referee's decision over Marty McCue, Chattanooga batmanweight, in a 10-round bout here tonight.

Both boys were about evenly matched, but Regan had the advantage over McCue in ring experience and out-generaled the Chattanoogaan. Most of the battle McCue carried the fight to Regan, but the Atlanta came around in three of the rounds and battled his way to the decision.

Illinois Commission To Hold Special Meeting To Review Flowers Bout

Chicago, December 3.—The Illinois boxing commission will hold a special meeting at Saturday morning to review the Walker-Flowers fight, in which Mickey Walker took the world's middleweight championship from the Georgia deacon by a referee's decision, according to Paul Phren, one of the commissioners.

Whether it was within the jurisdiction of the commission to alter the referee's decision, if it saw fit, Phren did not say, nor would he comment on a report that the boxers' purses would be held up pending the meeting. "They won't get paid tonight anyway," he said.

Another Bright Star.

As the football season ends for this or that school it seems to be the rule that some comparatively unknown star bursts into the football firmament in the last game and the fans are forced to wait another year to see just what he can do.

This was the case in the Tech High-Miami High game at Spiller's Friday. Waugh, the elusive quarter of the Smithie team, who has established a prep record for ground gained from scrimmage this year, has been the outstanding star of the team thus far. This year he did not fail to do his part and more than made good on his promise.

In a faded sweater of a substitute, who laid claim to a place among the stars in the Smithie hall of fame.

The little halfback is no larger than Waugh, and though not as shifty as Armin, he ripped off gain after gain on tackle and end plays. He also received passes with skill. As a line huffer he performed with the coolness and skill of a veteran. We do not know who this Hutt may be, but we are informed that he will be with Tech High next year and we hereby make a prophecy that the name of Hutt will adorn many a headline next year.

Armin Waugh continued his phenomenal season in the Miami game, tearing over tackle and around end for gain after gain, doing all the passing and kicking and running the team with the finesse of a master. The loss of Waugh will hurt the Smithies. He is the greatest prep quarterback we have seen in action in Atlanta.

Hammond, Morris and Oliphant all did their bit against the Floridians, and in Hammond the Smithies will have a great line smasher before another year is over.

Dean, big and red-headed, was the tower of strength in the Miami line. He played without a header, as before, and the game was half over the Smithies stopped trying to gain through his side of the line unless the runner swung wide out of the reach of Dean.

The Tech High machine was functioning in fine manner throughout the game, and despite the fact that they have lost more than one game during the season, they can say with pride, "WE ENDED THE SEASON IN A BURST OF GLORY."

Today Is the Day.

New Year's day may be the big day in football for a lot of folks, but for the colored people of the south today is the zenith of the season. The Tuskegee Tigers will meet Atlanta university at Spiller's for the colored championship of Dixie.

We say this will be a day of importance for the colored folks, but judging from the report on advance sale of tickets and from the nature of the crowds which have attended the other colored games here in the past, the event must be awaited by as many white people as colored.

The negroes always put on a good football game and this fracas today is bound to be of great interest, owing to the strength of the two teams. Tuskegee has a splendid record and they must keep their goal line unmarked to continue the record.

One of the most interesting things at a colored football game, in the opinion of the writer, is the rooting of the college students. The negro co-eds usually sing many rooting songs and their performance is worth the price of admission.

Added Attractions.

After waiting about two years or more for their initial experience in professional football, Atlanta sports fans are about to be given a large double dose in the space of a week.

And it is to be a large dose, sure enough, what with Red Grange and George Wilson coming here with many other gridiron celebrities on December 14 and the teams of Doug Wycoff and Mack Tharpe slated to clash on December 14 at Spiller's.

Just how Atlanta football fans will look upon the professional game cannot be told before the games, but it has been our privilege to see considerable pro football in the north and we venture to say that the two games in prospect for Atlanta will turn away a lot of satisfied people when the final whistle blows.

Wycoff, Williams, and Murray, of Tech, will be great drawing cards for the game on Saturday night, and that game should draw as large a crowd if not larger than the one which will witness the Grange-Wilson battle. Mack Tharpe, who is scheduled to organize the pro team to meet Wycoff, is a great favorite among Atlanta fans and if he is able to complete his team from such men as Big Red Barron, Marshall, Godwin and Fincher, as he proposes to do, there will be a battle on Saturday.

Just a sight of the ghost of the gridiron is enough to lure several thousands to Spiller's for the Grange-Wilson game and it should be a great game.

With two such choice morsels to start things Atlanta will be put to a certain test. If the fans do not respond for these games it looks like curtains for the pro grid game here. Time will tell.

Yankees To Back Move To Prevent Baseball Pools

New York, December 3.—(AP)—Any investigation on foot to smash baseball pools or that will in any way lessen gambling on baseball games will receive the hearty cooperation of the New York Yankees.

Edward C. Barrow, secretary of the club, while denying any knowledge that the grand jury investigation of several "pools" in Boston had ramifications in New York, says: "We have spent thousands of dollars in the few years the Yankee stadium has been in operation and have employed a special police force to carry out the anti-gambling laws. We have blacklisted scores of men caught taking bets and have raided groups of bettors time and time again. One afternoon last summer we made 15 arrests."

John J. McGraw, manager of the New York Giants; Colonel Jacob Ruppert, president of the Yankees, and William P. Baker, president of the Philadelphia Nationals, have been active in preventing betting through the regular channels of National and American league activity since the White Sox scandal.

Princeton, N. J., December 3.—(AP)—Undergraduates of Princeton have petitioned the faculty athletic committee to reinstate boxing as a sport after 20 years of banishment. The senior council approves the petition.

Fifteen Bass Hi Stars Get Letters At Team Banquet

BY H. H. HOLT.

Finishing a very successful football season the William A. Bass Junior High school honored its football squad with one of the finest banquets that has ever been spread for the junior players, Friday night at the Daffodil tea room.

Although the team did not win a championship the school and the Parent-Teacher association appreciated the players' efforts and the real sportsmanship they displayed during the season and they have promised them their full cooperation.

J. Carlisle "Red" Smith, chairman of the athletic committee of the P.T.A., acted as toastmaster. "Red" is just as good a toastmaster as he is a baseball player, and he kept the ball rolling every minute.

Willis A. Sutton, superintendent of the board of education, gave an interesting talk as did Mr. H. R. Hunter, his assistant.

The principal fed the boys with enthusiasm with a stirring talk. Letters were awarded to 15 players, Jack Davis, captain; J. Hadley, M. L. Taylor, Denver Hilburne, Joe LaFitte, Van Guthridge, Lloyd Smith, Karl Burgess, Harry Baker, Lottin Smith, Riley Reed, Archie Fowler, James Rayne, Bryce Bullington and Oliver Jones were the ones to get letters.

Twenty-eight players on the squad were awarded good footballs by the Parent-Teacher association for their efforts.

John Hadley was elected captain for the 1927 season, and Denver Hilburne was elected alternate captain. Splendid acceptance speeches were made by both boys. Retiring captain Jack Davis paid his respects to his teammates for their loyal support during the past season.

TUSCALOOSAHI DEFEATS SENN, CHICAGO, 41-0

BY BOB MATHERN.

Tuscaloosa, Ala., December 3.—Tuscaloosa High defeated the Senn High school, of Chicago, rated by Walter Eckersall as the best prep team in Chicago district, by a 41-0 score today at Denny field. The game was played before a crowd of 7,000 fans.

The Tuscaloosans, led by their brilliant playing skipper, "Flash" Suther and Fullback Bower, scored two touchdowns in the first and last periods and in the other two periods. The first score was 19 to 0 in favor of the Tuscaloosans, the Chicago lads making their first downs in the second and third periods when their longest advance into Tuscaloosa territory was made.

Suther's 48-yard return of a kickoff started the game off and Suther's reception of a 42-yard pass from Kendall ended it. Long runs by Suther, Holly and Bowers for Tuscaloosa featured along with the passing of Kendall, while the play of Captain Thornton, Carver and Cook featured for the Chicago outfit.

Motion Is Offered To Have Committee Select Arbiters

Castator, of Atlanta, Is Named Among Officials to Select Committee For Selection Work—Coach Alexander Is Named on Other Committees.

Jacksonville, Fla., December 3.—(AP)—Football officials in the southern conference will hereafter be classified as to qualifications and accredited as is the practice in athletic conferences of the north and west if the conference accepts a resolution reported late today by a committee of football coaches.

The executive committee of the conference has referred to a special committee the resolution which offers a plan to create a committee of game officials which will draft a list of their profession in the conference borders and will grade them according to qualification and experience.

Castator Selected. Harry B. Springer, Clearwater, Fla.; A. R. Hutchins, Lake Wales, Fla., and Fred Castator, Atlanta, were the game officials recommended to form the committee. The resolution provided that these men shall constitute "an authorized agency through which and by whom a formal list of eligible and qualified officials shall be evolved."

The official list would be submitted to the members of the conference and after the football season of 1927 no conference contest would be officiated except from the accredited list. The committee would be empowered to draft rules and regulations involving tests and requirements of ability and experience.

Grand Brock, chairman of the coaches committee, presented the resolution to the executive committee, as a result of action taken by the coaches' association last night.

Two conference tournaments were awarded at the first general assembly late today. Louisiana State was awarded the annual conference tournament in football which is held in May, while the annual cross-country competition was given to the University of North Carolina.

Routine reports and appointment of committees consumed the most of the initial session. The basketball committee showed that the annual tournament in Atlanta last winter was a financial success, $10,000 in receipts being reported. Track also held its own in a financial way and the committee reported a small balance in the treasury.

Just wanted to mingle with the crowd, that's all," said Cobb in his letter, making reservations. Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators of the American league, also is to stay at the same hotel.

The "Georgia Peach," who has just retired from active baseball and the management of the Detroit Tigers, many times in the past two weeks has declared that he is through with big league baseball and never will take part in minor league games. His friends and former colleagues, however, are not yet convinced that he is content to rest on the laurels of his record and the string of world's records in the national sport. His batting eye is too good, they say, and add that they know that "he loves the game too much to stay out of it."

Asheville, N. C., December 3.—(AP)—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, just a citizen from Augusta, Ga., has made reservations at a local hotel and has written that he will attend the annual meeting next week of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues here.

Woman's Club Tea Friday Features Arbor Day Program

A very appropriate finale to a custom worthy of all imitation, planting trees on Arbor day in honor of each governor of each state in all the United States and memorial trees to distinguished sons and daughters, was the tea at the Atlanta Woman's club Friday afternoon, which followed the Arbor day exercises at the state capital where a tree was planted in honor of Governor Clifford Walker. These exercises were presided over by Mrs. W. B. Price-Smith, president of the Atlanta Woman's club; B. M. Lufburrow, state forester; and Mrs. J. R. Bachman, chairman of forestry.

The same motif prevailed throughout the program, which was in charge of Miss Alice Baxter, chairman of conservation; Mrs. J. R. Bachman, chairman of forestry; and Mrs. A. O. Woodward, chairman of memorial trees, who were hostesses of the tea.

A program of music and poetry interpreting the spirit of the urge for Arbor day was reflected in the group of songs given by Miss Frances Woodberry and in the poem, "Song of the Trees," written and read by Mrs. J. P. Womble, and "Plant a Beech Tree," written by Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, read by Mrs. Julia Cope.

Mrs. Albert Thornton, Sr., spoke of Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie's great work in forestry and of her being on the national board before the state forestry board was organized here.

Guests of honor and those seated at the president's table were Governor Clifford Walker, Hon. S. G. McLenahan, secretary of state; Mayor Walter Sims, S. M. McCallie, state geologist; B. M. Lufburrow, state forester; J. P. Campbell, director of extension; Col. George M. Napier, Bonnell H. Stone, J. Leonard Rountree, C. B. Harmon, Alex K. Sissons, Paul Ehrig, Edwin Johnson, George H. Hope, W. B. Stewart, Virlyn B. Moore, Mr. and Mrs. Hollins Randolph, Mrs. Albert Thornton, Sr., Mrs. J. K. Hambo, Mrs. J. M. Hich, Mrs. Tom Brooks, Mrs. Oscar Palmour, Mrs. B. D. ## Celebrated French Pianist Will Play at Concert Today

Many congenial theater and box parties are being formed for the brilliant first performance of E. Robert Schmitz, the celebrated French pianist who will arrive in Atlanta Saturday morning for his concert this afternoon at 8:30 o'clock in the Woman's Club auditorium as the first offering in the series in time of the Atlanta Music club.

Mrs. DeLos Hill, ex-president of the club and prominent Atlanta pianist, and Miss Helen Knox Spain, noted Atlanta musical writer, have been asked to head the committee who will welcome the distinguished foreigner. Miss Julia Oliver Eckford, instructor in the piano department at Washington seminary, is a former pupil of Schmitz, and he has arranged to give her a special lesson during his brief visit. In commenting on the artist Miss Eckford recently said:

"His Atlanta program is highly illuminative both of the character of the man and his background. The high contrast on the program is the gigantic 'Fantasi and Fugue in G Minor' from Bach, with the ethereal Debussy group. To me Schmitz is most at home in Debussy. He translates perfectly the mist and moonlight of the Debussy tradition."

"He goes back to the early Italian music for the Scarlatti and Couperin group and then after the Chopin numbers and Debussy numbers skips to the ultra modern in the last selections. It is the creed of Schmitz that every artist should promote the compositions of his own country. In this last group Schmitz has chosen from Ravel, the French composer, 'Plays of the Water.' ## "Vanity Flossie" Chief Aide To Jolly Old Saint Nicholas Help old Santa Claus!

And, best of all, help him by providing for Little Sister a gorgeous "Vanity Flossie" doll offered you absolutely free of charge by The Constitution.

You can increase the store of good things Saint Nick will bring that little girl of yours, or you can win a "Vanity Flossie" as a direct present at Christmas by devoting only a few hours of easy and pleasant activity to the matter.

Scores of persons already have called at The Constitution building since this paper announced its generous offer of free Christmas dolls last Sunday. Why can't you also profit by the most generous free offer of ideal Christmas gifts for little sisters ever made by an Atlanta newspaper?

In this issue you'll find a full page advertisement describing the sensational offer and supplying full details on how to win a "Vanity Flossie" doll to supplement the good things old Santa Claus will bring to that little girl of yours or as a direct Christmas present to her. It isn't necessary to repeat the details here; the full page ad will supply them to you.

All persons who win "Vanity Flossie" dolls are assured of the very finest quality material and workmanship—a doll far superior to any other offered by newspapers. If you doubt that statement, call at The Constitution building and look at "Vanity Flossie." Comparisons are invited, with the knowledge that "Flossie" will win your heart the minute you see her.

The chief feature of this magnificent playmate for little sister is the fact that she is equipped with specially-designed rubber arms which make her the most cuddly, adorable doll imaginable. The fingers are pliant, and the little mother can make "Vanity Flossie" grasp and hold a cup, a mirror or any object she desires. This unique and attractive feature is found only in dolls of the most expensive make; the fact is, if you bought "Vanity Flossie" at retail her cost would put quite a crimp in the family pocket.

In addition to the rubber arms and hands, "Vanity Flossie" is 19 inches high; has thirty, rolling eyes; she winks and blinks and goes to sleep and wakes up crying "Mama!" just like a real baby. Soft, human-like golden hair, an unbreakable head; washable face and hands; big blue eyes, dainty clothes, patent leather slippers that button on; a dainty and complete trousseau and many other features are found only in this wonderful doll.

And best of all, she doesn't cost you a single cent. Take advantage of this unparalleled offer at once. Others who are wise are already in the game, and there is room for hundreds of others as the field is unlimited.

There's some little girl whose heart you can make glad at Christmas time; so turn now to the big advertisement in this issue and get busy.

Capital News of Interest To Atlanta and Georgia

BY SAM W. SMALL.

Special Staff Correspondent.

Washington, December 3.—It is stated at automobile headquarters here that the associations of makers and owners of motor vehicles are taking sharp issue with President Coolidge on the matter of the repeal of the automobile excise tax.

The tax is 3 per cent on the sale price of automobiles and the contention of the president is that the tax should be paid because the federal government is giving financial aid in large sums to the states to build the good roads that motorists need and demand. On the other side the automobile people say that the tax is a gross species of class taxation and that the motorists of the nation have already paid into the federal treasury $200,000,000 more than the federal aid of the past and of the future up to June 30, 1926.

The total taxes paid up to June 30, 1926 were $1,100,825,983. The total federal aid up to the same date was $499,200,535 and the authorized aid forward up to June 30, 1926 is $840,000,000. It is set out by the motorists that if the tax were repealed after January 1, 1927, they would still have a balance to their credit of $100,000,000 in the federal treasury on June 30, 1926. So they claim they have more than paid their way and are entitled to relief from an onerous tax that the government does not need in the way that the president has figured. They will fight for immediate repeal.

It is possible that our Georgia federal judges will give warrant to enjoy a fatter Christmas than in the past, as Congressman Dyer predicts that the bill to increase the salaries of all federal judges will pass the house on December 9, and the senate substitute for the original house bill. Circuit judges will get $15,000 a year instead of $8,500 and district judges will get $12,500 instead of $7,500. That extra $5,000 ought to buy a pretty decent Christmas feed.

Domestic exports of both cotton and cotton manufactures showed decreases in October of this year from that month of last year. The export of raw cotton during the month was $80,944,157 less in value than that of October, 1925. The total of manufactures of cotton showed a decrease of $2,441,699 from the exports of October, 1925. The heaviest proportional decrease was in cotton hosiery. Evidently the world at large is becoming more and more a silk stocking aristocracy.

Examiner Weaver, of the interstate commerce commission, recommends that the all-rail sugar rate from Savannah, Port Wentworth, Ga., and all other producing points from Boston around to New Orleans to points in Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, the Carolinas, Florida and Louisiana be found unreasonable. He also finds that interstate rates on sugar within Georgia, South Carolina and Virginia are unduly prejudicial. The commission will seek to remedy the unreasonable rates promptly.

Today the interstate commerce commission heard the oral argument of Representative Lancaster Williams on behalf of the Georgia and Florida railroad for authority to acquire the property of the Georgia and Florida railroad in the furtherance of a reorganization plan designed to put the line in a paying condition. The matter is under advisement.

Final arrangements were completed Friday for the annual banquet and election of officers of the Atlanta Foreign Trade club, it was announced by Charles F. Hoke, chairman of the program and entertainment committee. The event is to be held Saturday night at 6:30 in hall number 2 of the chamber of commerce.

A special feature will be an address on present-day European trade conditions by Leigh W. Hunt, assistant United States trade commissioner at Brussels, who will spend Saturday and Monday at the office of Harry O. Mitchell, in charge of the district office of the federal department of commerce. Other speakers will be Lieutenant B. C. Getsinger, formerly with the department, and H. O. Williamson, export manager of the Atlantic Steel company and president of the club.

Fred Coolidge, of the Coolidge Paint company, noted for his skill in parlor magic, will furnish the leading feature of the entertainment program. Glenn G. Stewart, of the port department of the Atlantic Steel company, will give the dance of the seven veils. W. C. Ford, freight traffic department of the Southern railway system, will put on a clog dance. Mr. Hoke, who is a well-known tenor, will offer several selections accompanied by Mrs. Hoke.

Colonel W. L. Peel, chairman of the auditorium organ committee, has announced that on account of the shortness of days at this season, the regular Sunday afternoon organ recitals will begin at 3 o'clock instead of 2:30, to continue through the winter months.

City Organizer Dr. Charles A. Sheldon will give an interesting program of organ classics this Sunday. Recitals are free.

FOR SHORT TERM

L. P. Summers, of Abingdon, Va., former district attorney for the western district of Virginia, arrived at the federal penitentiary Friday to begin serving a 15-month sentence following his conviction on a charge of presenting false vouchers for payment of salary.

Summers, convicted in federal court at Roanoke in June, 1925, appeared in court there Thursday and was sentenced by Judge Henry C. McDowell. The case grew out of presentation of vouchers for payment of salary to his stenographer.

He was brought to the prison here by Deputy Marshal Peyton Gray.

MEN WHO MADE THE WORLD

GEORGE WASHINGTON, THE MOST ILLUSTRIOUS AMERICAN, OCCUPIES A UNIQUE PLACE IN HISTORY. MOST OTHER ILLUSTRIOUS MEN WON THEIR POSITIONS BY REASON OF SOME SIMPLE, SUPREME TALENT OR GENIUS IN SOME PARTICULAR FIELD, BUT WASHINGTON WON HIS BY A COMBINATION OF CAPACITIES RARELY, IF EVER, FOUND BEFORE IN A SINGLE INDIVIDUAL, AND YET HE WAS SUPREME IN NONE OF THEM. OTHER MEN WERE AS GOOD AS WASHINGTON, OTHER GENERALS MORE BRILLIANT; FRANKLIN WAS A GREATER PHILOSOPHER; CHATHAM A GREATER STATESMAN; JEFFERSON A SOUNDER POLITICAL BUT HISTORY OFFERS NO OTHER CHARACTER IN WHICH SO MANY ADMIRABLE TRAITS WERE SO EQUALLY BALANCED.

RARELY HAS THE WORLD SEEN A MILITARY VICTOR WHO SOUGHT NO PROFIT FOR HIMSELF, A MAN WHO HAD MADE HIMSELF THE ADORER LEADER OF HIS PEOPLE AND WHO REPELLED EVERY SUGGESTION THAT HE SHOULD SEEK PERSONAL AGGRANDISEMENT. IN THE STORY WHICH FOLLOWS HERE, PAINS WILL BE TAKEN TO RECORD THOSE DETAILS OF HIS LIFE AND THE PERSONAL ANECDOTES THAT PRESERVE TO US THE REAL WASHINGTON.

George Washington

THE ANCESTRAL HOME OF THE WASHINGTON FAMILY WAS SULGRAVE MANOR, IN NORTHAMPTON, ENGLAND. THIS ESTATE WAS GRANTED BY HENRY VII TO LAWRENCE WASHINGTON, MAYOR OF NORTHAMPTON AND THE ANCESTOR, SIXTH REMOVED, OF OUR GEORGE. IN LATER YEARS CIVIL WAR AND DISCORD FOLLOWED IN ENGLAND. THE WASHINGTONS LOST SULGRAVE MANOR. ABOUT 1657, THE DESCENDANTS OF THE WASHINGTON LINE, TWO BROTHERS, JOHN AND LAWRENCE, CAME TO VIRGINIA. JOHN ACQUIRED A FINE PLANTATION, BECAME A POWER IN THE COMMUNITY AND WAS THE GREAT-GRANDFATHER OF GEORGE.

IN VIRGINIA OF HIS DAY EACH PLANTATION WAS A LITTLE WORLD WITHIN ITSELF. THE CROP WAS TOBACCO, TENDED BY SLAVES. IN THE FULLNESS OF TIME JOHN WENT TO HIS REWARD AND THE PLANTATION PASSED TO HIS SON, LAWRENCE. AT HIS DEATH THE PROPERTY CAME INTO THE HANDS OF JOHN'S GRANDSON, AUGUSTINE. AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON'S ESTATE CONSISTED OF FIVE THOUSAND ACRES ALONG THE POTOMAC. HE WAS ALSO INTERESTED IN IRON MINES IN VIRGINIA AND MARYLAND. AUGUSTINE'S FIRST WIFE DIED, LEAVING TWO SONS. ON A BUSINESS TRIP TO ENGLAND, AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON MET MARY BALL. SHE WAS ALSO A VIRGINIAN, THE DAUGHTER OF COL. BALL. (TO BE CONT'D)

SCHOOLS TO OBSERVE GOLDEN RULE SUNDAY

High points in the general observance Sunday of Golden Rule Sunday, in which Georgia is joining the nation, will be programs at Agnes Scott and the Berry schools, where tin cups will be used by students for one meal during the day in which they will serve the coarser nature of the food and the simple manner in which it is served being stressed through the use of cups, it is pointed out.

In pulpits, scores of schools, church society programs and in many homes in the state Sunday, the day is expected to be fittingly observed, according to H. S. Meredith, southern regional director.

The recent earthquake in Armenia which left many thousands destitute, homeless and hungry, according to M. Meredith, has resulted in bringing conditions in Bible lands clearly before the public.

"Relief work," he said, "is greatly hampered through loss of the Near East relief fund. Our buildings were damaged, our orphanages in some instances rendered totally unserviceable and our limited funds and relief projects were referred to the point where much hunger and distress will not get proper attention unless we are able to arouse in the hearts of Americans a greater sense of responsibility for our war-torn in the Near East," he concluded.

STREET COMMITTEE OKAYS PAVING BID

Paving on Haygood street from Martin, 712 feet east of Martin was approved Friday at the regular meeting of the streets committee of city council. The expected war of paving contractors failed to develop, due to the lack of time to advertise and receive bids for five projects which the committee was to have re-advertised.

At the last meeting of city council the committee asked that all paving projects approved by it at the Friday previous be rejected and sent back for new bids. This was because certain of the contractors were said to have been permitted to revise their bids after they were opened. Other contractors objected to this procedure and a price slashing war to get the Willet was host at the meeting, which was declared one of the most interesting and enjoyable in the organization's history.

Two newly elected members were introduced at Friday's special session. They are Judge W. F. Jenkins, of the state supreme court, and James B. Nevin, of the Atlanta Georgian.

INSTALLMENT LXVI.
SURRENDER!

As they settled themselves in their chairs before the fire Dorinda said, "I wanted to ask you whether you talked to Mr. Hatch today."

David tried to smile at her, but all he produced was a cynical grin at life. "He talked to me," he admitted. "He offered me a partnership."

"You're an awful baby, David."

near that by stretching out a hand he could have touched her, yet she seemed so far away that the width of the world might have stretched between them. What was most definitely between them, however, was the memory of her words at the time of their bargain. If he ever loved her, she had said, she would despise and hate him; she would feel that he was breaking faith. But for this sickening memory, he would have told her the truth; not with any hope, but in response to the urge in the soul of man to tell woman of his love, even when he knows the telling is vain.

At last she spoke. "Will they hold this offer open, so you can accept it—afterward?" she asked in a low voice.

"I doubt it."

"So do I. Our exploit won't be regarded as a recommendation, will it?"

"Not exactly."

She raised her hands from her lap and brought them together with an effect of desperation.

"Oh, what a mess I've made of things for you!" she cried out.

"We made the mess together," he reminded her, "and the result will be harder for you than for me."

"But it was my idea," she persisted—"and my failure."

He swallowed. Floods seemed rushing past his ears. If only they need not talk about it!

"We both failed," he said doggedly. "I want you to remember always that this has been a fifty-fifty business from start to finish. Neither of us can blame the other. Now, for God's sake," he broke out irrepressibly, "don't let's say any more!"

As if accepting the words as a dismissal, she rose, and he rose, too, with a sigh of combined exhaustion and relief. He did not know that she had noticed it, but she caught it and looked up at him quickly. Something in his expression brought her heart to her mouth, and she took a step forward.

"David!"

The next moment she was in his arms, held there for a wild moment, in which the world danced and he danced with it. Then he released her and sank back in his chair, his face hidden in his hands.

"I won't have your pity!" he groaned.

"David!"

She came and knelt beside him.

"I won't have reparation, either, if you've got any fool notion of that kind in your head," he persisted, raising his eyes to meet hers. "I won't have anything but you, Dorinda—all of you. I'm mad about you. I know now I've been mad about you almost from the first. That's what has made it so hard. If I hadn't cared, I could have put it over—I could have kept steady. But with everything in me calling out for you—I've said it," he ended dully. "Now go ahead and despise and hate me as you said you would. But don't pity me or pet me, for I can't stand either pity or petting."

"You're an awful baby, David," she laughed chokily and there were tears in her eyes. "I suppose all men are. And as blind as bats, too—every one of them," said the newly qualified expert on men.

Kneeling on a level with him, she caught his black head between her hands and held it to her breast. He gulped like the little boy he seemed to her in that moment and his arms went around her again.

"What you will have and what you won't have!" she crooned, her cheek on the top of his head. "As if you had anything to say about it! I'm more in love than any girl ever was or ever will be again. I have been, too, almost from the first, and that is what made me act so devilish. I simply couldn't stand being such a sentimental idiot and going back on all my plans and beliefs. So it made me act like a fiend. I was trying to cure myself. But I don't mind it any more. I don't mind anything, now that I know you care, too. And I'll tell you one thing: I'm not going to lose my head—completely and spoil you!"

"O, yes, you are! You're going to lose it completely, just as I've lost mine."

David spoke with lips close to her ear and with the exultation of one whose shaking voice is mingled with the music of the universe. But she held back a little and something in her look and tone steadied him.

"Do you know what I love most about you, Davy?" she asked. "It's your tenderness—and gentleness." He kissed her hands.

"Do you know when I first admitted to myself that I loved you?" she went on. "It was the day you came into my room at Adneyport and laid your cheek against mine. I love that. I've thought of it a thousand times since. Put your cheek against mine now, Davy."

David obeyed Dorinda, and their faces clung together. Hers was wet.

"You'll have to be awfully patient with me," she murmured. "You know what a life I've had and what a nature I've got and how spoiled I am. I can't change completely—all at once. Probably there will be more 'spasms,' as you call them. But, if you'll give me time, I'll make myself all over. For—I adore you!"

"That's all that matters," he told her, and now his eyes were wet. "Don't make too many changes. I want you as you are. But there will be a picture on which the moon looked down was a charming one. He a lot of changes in me," he went on, unsteadily. "God knows, there's need of them."

"Not many, please," she begged, while the smile he loved flashed out at him.

Annie, arriving five minutes later to see if the library book box needed refilling, saw them going upstairs side by side, young Mrs. Goddard encircled in the curve of her husband's arm.

"Now you won't have to say anything to Mr. Hatch tomorrow except that you will take the partnership," Dorinda beautifully murmured as they mounted. In her sitting room she led him to a wide front window, and they stood for a moment looking out upon a white world over which a full moon cast a soft glow.

"It's a night for lovers," David breathed, his brown cheek against hers.

"I know it is, and made for us. I've been thinking all evening of the silly little song Kitty sang to tease us. 'Ain't love wonderful?' O, David, how long ago that seems and how hideously lonely I have felt ever since, thinking I'd have to go through life without you! Now, somehow if the world had no one but you and me it would seem enough."

"Quite enough," David agreed. "We'll see about clearing out the rest tomorrow. In the meantime, darling, though we've been married two months, here's our first real kiss."

The picture on which the moon looked down was a charming one, but the burned-out planet slipped indifferently behind a passing cloud.

Price movements in today's London gave definite indications that sentiment in Wall Street was veering toward the constructive side of the market. The first attempts to impede the forward movement of the market were made by a half-hearted and the action of the leading traders recently was characterized by a more sane view of the bull camp. At 41½ the market was able to weather the previous notwithstanding heavy demand to satisfy the market.

Important banking interests were of the opinion that the long discussed reduction in the reserve ratio was not necessary in order to assist the treasury financing around the corner. It was felt that if it did not materialize it would be a serious blow to the postponed long term issue for the year.

This prospect encouraged aggressive buyers in the market. The market was buoyed by Australia which moved ahead under the Pool interests were active in the oil shares, but many of the shares which had been active for several days, notably Phillips, ran into minor fluctuations. The development was a natural outcome of the advance in prices of that issue. Offerings, however, were well taken and prices did not give way to any marked degree.

Rubber shares responded unfavorably to the constructive plans designed by the manufacturers to create a pool for the purpose of stabilizing the market and to prevent artificial market conditions.

The chief movements in the financial markets yesterday were extended still further. (Today's Standard Oil) was higher; cotton sank to new lows and wheat scored again, just topping the high for the first time since 1914.

Further testimony to easy credit conditions was furnished by the prompt over-subscription of the $100,000,000 January Standard Oil debentures and the renewed strength and activity of bond market.
